Castro behind Kennedy deaths: publisher

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's vow of vengeance against the Kennedys after learning of a CIA plot to assassinate him led to their later murders, Las Vegas Sun publisher Hank Greenspun reported Monday in a copyrighted story.

Greenspun said evidence in his possession combined with documents in the hands of congressional committees "provides a clearly marked trail leading to logical conclusions as to why the Kennedy brothers were killed. That path leads straight to the door of a vengeful Castro."

Castro vowed vengeance, Greenspun said, after learning of a CIA plot enlisting underworld figures to assassinate him following the "Bay of Pigs" incident.

At a meeting with officials from South and Latin American states shortly after an attempt on his life in 1963, Castro said, "The Kennedys have sought to kill me! I shall mete out the same justice to them," the publisher reported.

(The Senate Intelligence Committee report in November said there was evidence of at least eight plots involving the CIA to assassinate Castro between 1960 and 1965. It said the CIA was plotting the murder of the Cuban leader the same day President John F. Kennedy was killed in Dallas.)

GREENSPUN SAID Kennedy wanted to counteract the damage the "Bay of Pigs" caused to his political career, and the president's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, physically located his headquarters at the CIA "in order to personally direct the countermeasures he deemed necessary to offset the harmful blow to the Kennedy political fortunes. A significant part of Robert Kennedy's strategy revolved about the plan to kill Castro," Greenspun said.

"Castro agents captured a CIA assassin and tortured him into revealing to Castro personally the entire plot to kill him. What is most significant is that Castro's threat was to the Kennedys and not to the President alone. This becomes even more meaningful in light of the subsequent assassinations of both John and Robert Kennedy."

Greenspun said the late U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren was advised "by a person of unquestioned integrity and patriotism" of the CIA plot to kill Castro and of Castro's vow of vengeance. Warren instructed U.S. Secret Service Chief James Rowley to tell the American people the truth but instead the case was turned over to the FBI.

The late J. Edgar Hoover covered up FBI investigative errors made in its report to the Warren Commission by informing President Lyndon Johnson that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in killing John Kennedy, Greenspun said.

Three hurt in school bus, auto crash

Two Dempster Junior High School students and a motorist were injured slightly Monday afternoon when a school bus carrying 42 students collided with an auto near the Mount Prospect school.

The collision occurred about 3:20 p.m. as the bus was turning onto Dempster Street and was struck by an oncoming car.

The two students, Terry Waller, 531 Easy St., and Denise Lembessis, 174 Kathleen Dr., both 13 of Des Plaines, were taken by their parents to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. They were X-rayed for bumps on the head and released.

The driver of the car, Maurice J. Wuts, 17, of 655 Jill Ct., Des Plaines, suffered minor cuts and was taken by paramedics to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. He was treated and released.

MOUNT PROSPECT firemen said two other students complained of pain following the accident but were not taken to the hospital.

Anthony Rabattini, administrative assistant at the school, said the two students were examined by the school nurse after the mishap.

Following the accident, students boarded another bus and continued home.

Mount Prospect police said they ticketed the bus driver, Dyann A. Schweigel, 35, of the Davidsmeyer Bus. Co., for failure to yield the right of way.

Wuts, who was traveling westbound on Dempster Street, was not ticketed. He told police he tried unsuccessfully to swerve and avoid hitting the bus.

Chamber installs officers

New officers of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce and Industry recently were installed at a banquet attended by more than 300 persons.

Wilfred A. Ninnis was installed as president; Earl F. Barnes, vice president; John Heddens, treasurer; and C. W. (Tony) Kaltschuck will continue to serve as executive secretary.

Council denies day-care center expansion plan

The Des Plaines City Council Monday night denied a request by Baby Town Day Care Center/ 2329 Birch St., to expand its operation.

The denial was recommended by the council's municipal development committee and was passed 14-3 by the council.

Lorraine Angell, owner of the center, was seeking a special use permit with a variation to allow expansion of facilities so the center could increase its enrollment from 20 to 85 children.

The request was denied despite the pleas of more than 100 parents who have children in Baby Town and another day-care center in Rosemont.

ALD. JOSEPH SZABO, 1st, committee chairman, said the recommendation was made because the expansion plans do not meet the city's special use provisions regarding square footage and lot space. He said officials also believe it would be detrimental to the surrounding residential area.

"I think there is a need for this type of operation, but I don't think the area is suitable for something this large," he said.

Ald. Carmen Farlo, 6th, said he opposed the request because he does not believe a commercial establishment belongs in a residential area.

"Any time you are making a change in a residential area to something other than residential you are changing the character of the area," he said.

"YOU HAVE TO TAKE into consideration the people who the day care center helps, but you have to also take into consideration the property owners."

Ald. Gerald Meyer, 7th, said he thinks it is a bad policy for the city council to allow a variation to the city day-care center ordinance.

"When we set up the ordinance for day-care centers in residential areas, we did it so the surrounding properties would not be adversely effected," he said.

"There's a reason for the standards we've set and they should be followed," he added.

Ald. Irene Birchfield, 5th; Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, and Mayor Herbert H. Behrel were the only ones to vote in favor of the day-care center plans.

After the city council decision, Mrs. Angell refused comment.

Council votes to appeal Wolf reinstatement

The Des Plaines City Council Monday night voted to appeal a Cook County Circuit Court decision in an attempt to block the reinstatement of David Wolf as deputy fire chief of the city's fire department.

The council passed the measure unanimously after a brief closed-door session.

Wolf, a 23-year fire department veteran, was ordered reinstated Jan. 27 by Circuit Court Judge Edward Healy, who ruled Wolf did not resign his post as contended by city officials. Wolf filed a lawsuit against the city after he was removed from the city payroll last July 18.

Wolf, 45, an unsuccessful mayoral candidate in 1973, reportedly has had a number of disagreements with Fire Chief Donald Corey, some pertaining to Wolf's job performance and others because of his nondepartment activities.

Anthony Filosa was leaning on his son about the boy's poor grades in junior high school Spanish. Then-13-year-old Matthew was close to tears. He assured his dad he was doing the best he could.

"Look, Dad," Matthew Filosa said, "You go to law school, right? You go there every weekend to study, right? You're doin' the best you can, right? So how come you still get 2 F's?" And Filosa stopped leaning.

That sort of understanding between the Palatine parent and child, both students, developed during the six years Filosa worked nights and weekends toward the law degree he finally earned earlier this year from John Marshall Law School.

FILOSA, A CERTIFIED public accountant and father of six, flunked his share of courses, one course twice. He left Chicago's Kent Law School in 1963 when his grade point average slipped .03 below minimum requirements. He had always been a student who had to work very hard for his grades, he said, and read too slowly to wade through his assignments in addition to working as an industrial accountant.

"I just didn't want to be a loser," Filosa said of his decision to return to law school nine years after flunking out. "When something gnaws at you like that, you've got to do something about it."

So after working all day, Filosa would attend classes at night and study and do research weekends. Filosa, 43, was among the older members of his class, though not the oldest. Several of his professors were younger than he, "but they knew their material and you respected them for it," he said.

Turnabout fair play for Percy?

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service spends $46.1 million a year handling mail — much of it political — sent free by members of Congress, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Monday.

"It seems unnecessary," Percy said, "to spend public funds for too frequent mass mailings, the wording of which could cause them to be looked upon more as tools of political influence than justifiable legislative and issue-related communications."

Percy sent two copies of the statement to UPI's Springfield bureau. Each came in a separate envelope and each was sent using Percy's free mailing privilege.

Record spending plea in state budget

by STEVE BROWN

Gov. Daniel Walker's fiscal 1977 budget contains a request for record state spending, but is almost $900 million less than he sought last year.

Breaking a long-standing tradition, Walker released details of the budget nearly 48 hours before he was scheduled to introduce his proposal Wednesday to the Illinois General Assembly.

The $9.908 billion budget is less than $10.8 billion Walker sought last year and is less than the $9.95 billion approved by the legislature.

While the appropriations request is down, however, the governor wants to spend a record $8.41 billion, up from the $8.155 billion spending estimate last year.

Norton Kay, Walker's press aide, told The Herald the budget is designed "to do as much as possible within the tight restraints of the economy." He said the budget will allow the governor to maintain his pledge not to raise taxes.

In key areas: Walker has proposed

- Providing only about 40 per cent of the $393 million increase sought by the Illinois office of education, with the governor refusing how the $149 million increase should be spent.
- To hike public aid spending to more than $2 billion, an increase of 4.5 per cent or $86 million, but not asking for a cost-of-living increase for welfare recipients;
- Increasing social services spend-

Walker asks record spending hike

ing 5.3 per cent or $29 million;

• Boosting higher education spending 5.3 per cent also, but holding to his earlier rejection of a tuition increase.

Walker predicted the state will collect $533 million in additional revenue in fiscal 1977, a projection that is substantially above that of other state officials and possibly the target for the quickest criticism.

State Comptroller George Lindberg has said the revenues will increase only $400-500 million and the Illinois Chamber of Commerce has set revenue growth at around $365 million.

Walker's spending proposals, even using the "optimistic" revenue forecast, are tied to a plan to speed up the collection of sales tax from large retailers, corporate income tax and income tax withheld by employers. The plan must be approved by the legislature.

The governor managed to present a budget below last year's by decreasing spending in transportation, from $2.23 billion to $1.9 billion, public health, from $57.8 million to $52 million and environmental protection, from $408 million to $337 million.

Quicker tax payments proposed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker Monday proposed a three-part plan to sped up the collection of some taxes, which if passed by the Illinois General Assembly, will give the state treasury a one-time boost of $95 million.

Walker said he will submit the proposal to the legislature, but added he has not yet started formally drafting it.

With the money, Walker said, the state will end the coming fiscal year with an available balance of $181 million. If the legislation fails, however, the state's bank balance could drop below $100 million — a level at which the state begins to experience day-to-day cash flow problems.

WALKER'S PLAN calls for acceleration of sales tax payments by the state's 3,500 largest-volume retailers — those paying the state more than $5,000 a month in sales tax.

Presently, businesses are required to pay their sales tax collections to the state on the last day of the month after they are collected. The Walker proposal would change that due date to the 15th day of the month following collection.

The second part of the plan would speed up collection of employe withholding taxes to the state by requiring they be paid to the treasury within a certain number of days after specified accumulation dates.

The final part of the proposal would move the state corporate tax filing date back one month, from April 15 to March 15. That would mean corporations would have to file a month earlier than they do now. The new date would conform with federal filing requirements.

C&NW and RTA reopen negotiations

The Chicago & North Western Ry. has reopened negotiations with the Regional Transportation Authority, a step which could eventually lead to the RTA buying the line's commuter operation, officials said Monday. RTA board member Richard Newland said he and board member James Kemp met with railroad officials Saturday to discuss the matter. He said the North Western requested a $325,000 a month subsidy while negotiations are taking place, an amount equal to 15 per cent of the railroad's monthly revenues. That money would be applied to the purchase price if the RTA eventually buys the line's commuter facilities.

Three injured in bus crash

Two Dempster Junior High School students and a motorist were injured Monday afternoon when a school bus was struck by a car near the Mount Prospect school. None of the injuries were serious. There were 42 students on board the bus at the time of the accident. Police said the bus was turning out of the school driveway when it was struck by the oncoming auto. The driver of the car, who was injured, said he was unable to avoid the accident. He was not charged by police. The bus driver was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Fine range for pot approved

Palatine's proposed ordinance to decriminalize the possession of marijuana moved closer to passage Monday night with approval of a $50 to $500 fine range for possession of 30 grams or less. The village board's health, safety and welfare committee voted to recommend an ordinance be drafted using the fine range, which reduced the minimum from the $100 figure which originally was proposed. Police Chief Jerry Bratcher, who first presented the proposal to the board last November, said the $50 figure was "of consequence" and is a more manageable amount for the courts than a $100 minimum.

Health care alternatives sought by county panel

A committee was named Monday to study alternatives to providing health care for poor people in Cook County Hospital.

The committee, which includes Cook County Board Comr. John Stroger and Joel Edelman, former director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid, will report to County Board Pres. George W. Dunne before the May 1 deadline facing the county board on renovation of Oak Forest Hospital.

Oak Forest, a nursing home and rehabilitation facility run by the county, needs between $22 and $47 million in remodeling if it is to meet federal standards, Dunne said. In addition, Cook County Hospital will also need renovation because "it's an old building," Dunne said.

DUNNE SAID HE wants the committee to consider the possibility of increasing the use of private hospitals to care for patients who are being treated at Cook County and Oak Forest hospitals. He said 80 per cent of county's patients are being paid for by Medicare, Medicaid or private insurance.

Shifting the caes from county to private hospitals now could cause a problem, Dunne said, because of delays created by the state in payment for Medicare and Medicaid patients.

Dunne said he doubts that the committee will recommend that the county's public hospitals be closed entirely.

In other action, the county board gave formal approval to the county's and county hospital's property tax levies for 1976. The levies, which received preliminary approval last month when the budgets were approved, will raise property taxes approximately 7.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation. About 4.8 cents of the increase will be used to pay for the primary and general elections this year and 2.5 cents will be used by the hospital governing commission..

Walker asks record spending hike

ing 5.3 per cent or $29 million;

• Boosting higher education spending 5.3 per cent also, but holding to his earlier rejection of a tuition increase.

Walker predicted the state will collect $533 million in additional revenue in fiscal 1977, a projection that is substantially above that of other state officials and possibly the target for the quickest criticism.

State Comptroller George Lindberg has said the revenues will increase only $400-500 million and the Illinois Chamber of Commerce has set revenue growth at around $365 million.

Walker's spending proposals, even using the "optimistic" revenue forecast, are tied to a plan to speed up the collection of sales tax from large retailers, corporate income tax and income tax withheld by employers. The plan must be approved by the legislature.

The governor managed to present a budget below last year's by decreasing spending in transportation, from $2.23 billion to $1.9 billion, public health, from $57.8 million to $52 million and environmental protection, from $408 million to $337 million.

Quicker tax payments proposed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker Monday proposed a three-part plan to sped up the collection of some taxes, which if passed by the Illinois General Assembly, will give the state treasury a one-time boost of $95 million.

Walker said he will submit the proposal to the legislature, but added he has not yet started formally drafting it.

With the money, Walker said, the state will end the coming fiscal year with an available balance of $181 million. If the legislation fails, however, the state's bank balance could drop below $100 million — a level at which the state begins to experience day-to-day cash flow problems.

WALKER'S PLAN calls for acceleration of sales tax payments by the state's 3,500 largest-volume retailers — those paying the state more than $5,000 a month in sales tax.

Presently, businesses are required to pay their sales tax collections to the state on the last day of the month after they are collected. The Walker proposal would change that due date to the 15th day of the month following collection.

The second part of the plan would speed up collection of employe withholding taxes to the state by requiring they be paid to the treasury within a certain number of days after specified accumulation dates.

The final part of the proposal would move the state corporate tax filing date back one month, from April 15 to March 15. That would mean corporations would have to file a month earlier than they do now. The new date would conform with federal filing requirements.

C&NW and RTA reopen negotiations

The Chicago & North Western Ry. has reopened negotiations with the Regional Transportation Authority, a step which could eventually lead to the RTA buying the line's commuter operation, officials said Monday. RTA board member Richard Newland said he and board member James Kemp met with railroad officials Saturday to discuss the matter. He said the North Western requested a $325,000 a month subsidy while negotiations are taking place, an amount equal to 15 per cent of the railroad's monthly revenues. That money would be applied to the purchase price if the RTA eventually buys the line's commuter facilities.

Three injured in bus crash

Two Dempster Junior High School students and a motorist were injured Monday afternoon when a school bus was struck by a car near the Mount Prospect school. None of the injuries were serious. There were 42 students on board the bus at the time of the accident. Police said the bus was turning out of the school driveway when it was struck by the oncoming auto. The driver of the car, who was injured, said he was unable to avoid the accident. He was not charged by police. The bus driver was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Fine range for pot approved

Palatine's proposed ordinance to decriminalize the possession of marijuana moved closer to passage Monday night with approval of a $50 to $500 fine range for possession of 30 grams or less. The village board's health, safety and welfare committee voted to recommend an ordinance be drafted using the fine range, which reduced the minimum from the $100 figure which originally was proposed. Police Chief Jerry Bratcher, who first presented the proposal to the board last November, said the $50 figure was "of consequence" and is a more manageable amount for the courts than a $100 minimum.

Health care alternatives sought by county panel

A committee was named Monday to study alternatives to providing health care for poor people in Cook County Hospital.

The committee, which includes Cook County Board Comr. John Stroger and Joel Edelman, former director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid, will report to County Board Pres. George W. Dunne before the May 1 deadline facing the county board on renovation of Oak Forest Hospital.

Oak Forest, a nursing home and rehabilitation facility run by the county, needs between $22 and $47 million in remodeling if it is to meet federal standards, Dunne said. In addition, Cook County Hospital will also need renovation because "it's an old building," Dunne said.

DUNNE SAID HE wants the committee to consider the possibility of increasing the use of private hospitals to care for patients who are being treated at Cook County and Oak Forest hospitals. He said 80 per cent of county's patients are being paid for by Medicare, Medicaid or private insurance.

Shifting the caes from county to private hospitals now could cause a problem, Dunne said, because of delays created by the state in payment for Medicare and Medicaid patients.

Dunne said he doubts that the committee will recommend that the county's public hospitals be closed entirely.

In other action, the county board gave formal approval to the county's and county hospital's property tax levies for 1976. The levies, which received preliminary approval last month when the budgets were approved, will raise property taxes approximately 7.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation. About 4.8 cents of the increase will be used to pay for the primary and general elections this year and 2.5 cents will be used by the hospital governing commission..

'Detente' no longer in Ford vocabulary

U.S. pursues 'peace through strength'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Monday the term detente is no longer "applicable" in describing U.S. relations with the Soviet Union and China, and the United States will continue to negotiate with them in "a policy of peace through strength."

"I don't use the word detente any more," Ford said in a television interview.

"I think what we ought to say is that the United States will meet with superpowers — the Soviet Union, China and others — and seek to relax tensions so that we can continue a policy of peace through strength.

"If we're strong militarily, which we are, and if we continue that strength, we can negotiate with the Soviet Union, China, and others to maintain that peace.

"Detente is only a word that was coined. I don't think it is applicable anymore."

Later in the day, White House officials said Ford was not signaling a change in foreign policy.

The term originated at the start of the Nixon administration, in which the former President and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, then Nixon's top foreign policy adviser, used "detente" to enunciate a new policy of negotiation instead of confrontation with the Soviet Union.

In outlining his views, Ford added:

"I think we have to talk about the realities, negotiation for a lowering of the strategic nuclear ballistic capability and talk about trade. We ought to talk about science and those things in an atmosphere where we're dealing from strength and we recognize that others may have some.

"But we have to have that strength to move ahead."

Ford made the comments in a half-hour interview with Miami television station WCKT. It was the first time the President said he was dropping the term "detente" from his vocabulary.

The policy of detente has become a major issue in the battle for the Republican Presidential nomination since last month, when Ford's opponent, Ronald Reagan, sharply criticized it while campaigning in New Hampshire.

Reagan said the United States was getting virtually nothing out of detente beyond the right to "sell Pepsi Cola in Siberia."

Reagan's attack drew a prompt response from Ford, who said then and on numerous occasions since that he would not abandon the policy.

Ford also said he disagreed with Reagan on the value of keeping Kissinger at his State Department post. Reagan said over the weekend that he would not keep Kissinger in his Cabinet if he became President.

But Ford said, "As long as he wants to be secretary of state, I'd want him to continue in the Cabinet."

The President said he thought recent widespread criticism of Kissinger, in Congress and elsewhere, has been "political" and "very unfair" in view of the secretary of state's work over the years to negotiate settlement of longstanding disputes in the Middle East and other hotspots.

Ford proposes school aid programs be consolidated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Monday unveiled proposals to consolidate 24 school aid programs under a $3.3 billion block grant freeing state and local education from "an excess of control by the federal government."

The plan would require states to spend 75 per cent of the block grant money on aid to deprived or handicapped children, the White House said.

Ford said in his message to Congress he wanted to consolidate school aid programs in elementary and high school education, aid for handicapped school children, and adult and vocational education.

"It is time that we reconciled our good intentions with the recognition that we at the federal level cannot know what is best for every school child in every classroom in the country," Ford said.

He said control of schools should remain at state and local levels. "Nothing could be more destructive of the diversity of thought and opinion necessary for national progress than an excess of control by the federal government."

Ford said his plan would provide "federal support without federal impediments."

The proposal represents a $58 million increase over appropriations for the current fiscal year, an Office of Education spokesman said. The White House said subsequent authorizations would be increased by $200 million annually in fiscal years 1978, 1979 and 1980.

The biggest program in the package is targeted to spend more than $2 billion this year on needy school children.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary David Mathews told a White House briefing 10 per cent of current categorical grants are eaten up by administrative costs. He said it is "reasonable to expect" administration of the block grants could be done "with far less cost."

Mathews gave no indication that Ford will make any major busing proposals in the near future. The matter, Mathews said in response to questions, is "under study" by HEW and the Justice Department.

The White House said, "The legislation retains in full force all relevant civil rights procedures. It requires service to nonpublic school children and to Indian tribal children."

Funds would be distributed to the states under a formula based on the number of needy children and the state's school-age population.

States would have to develop and publish their plans for using the subsidies. If a state fails to meet federal spending requirements or the provisions of its own plan, the U.S. education commissioner would have authority to stop federal payments or to reduce the amount of aid up to 3 per cent.

PRESIDENT FORD reaches for HEW Secretary David Mathews' hand after Ford signed message Monday asking Congress to consolidate 24 school aid programs into a $3.3 billion block grant providing "federal support without federal impediments." Marjorie Lynch, HEW undersecretary, looks on.

High cost of auto replacement parts hit

A Senate Commerce subcommittee Monday heard testimony that automobile owners have been forced to pay significantly higher prices to replace parts damaged in accidents because manufacturers and dealers monopolize the sale of parts to garages. Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, chairman of the consumer subcommittee, said the panel was holding hearings because of a more than 15 per cent increase in the price of crash parts in the last six months of 1975 and a 150 per cent increase in the last nine years. The cost of crash parts is so high, Moss said, that it would cost $23,000 today to repair a completely demolished car that cost $5,500 when new.

Anheuser-Bush workers on strike

Teamsters went on strike Monday and shut down all nine plants of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., the world's largest brewer. The company said it should be a month before consumers would begin to miss the company's beer on store shelves. The company makes Budweiser, Busch and Michelob beer. About 8,000 workers at the company's breweries nationwide were affected, including 4,000 at the company's main plant in south St. Louis. Union officials said nonmonetary issues caused the contract dispute.

Two kidnapers of Niehous identified

Police in Caracas Monday identified two of the seven ultraleftist kidnapers of American William Niehous, 45, a glass industry executive from Toledo. They also located an abandoned car which was used in the Friday night abduction and recovered the clothing that Niehous was wearing when kidnaped.

The kidnapers said they were not interested in ransom and that Niehous would be summarily executed if there is any display of police repression against leftist groups.

OAU endorses Marxist victory in Angola

Ministers of the 47-nation Organization of African Unity Monday endorsed the Marxist victory in Angola and pledged support to a military campaign against South Africa. The ministers decided to seek an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council to discuss what they termed South Africa's "aggression" against Angola where South African troops are stationed in the southern region to protect a South African-financed dam project. OAU spokesmen made no reference to the 12,000 Cuban troops who spearheaded the fight against pro-Western independence movements in Angola.

Prices edge higher in slow trading

Blue chips rallied Monday to lead prices higher on the New York Stock Exchange, but indications the Federal Reserve Board had tightened credit resulted in the second slowest trading day of the year. Down six points in the early afternoon, the Dow Jones industrial average rallied to gain 2.75 points to 975.36 in a demonstration of blue-chip buying strength. Volume totaled 22,070,000 shares, down sharply from the 26,940,000 traded Friday and the slowest since Jan. 2 when only 10.3 million shares were traded. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.31 to 100.02.

Move to dismiss Patty case denied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The defense rested in the trial of Patricia Hearst Monday with an unsuccessful parting shot asking that all charges be dismissed on grounds the government had withheld evidence tending to show her innocent.

U. S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter denied the motion, and the prosecution Tuesday will begin its windup rebuttal which could send the case to the jury by Friday but more likely early next week.

"Your honor, the defense rests," said attorney F. Lee Bailey after 11 days of testimony which starred Miss Hearst in a week on the witness stand during which she swore she joined a bank robbery out of sheer terror of her kidnapers.

There was a hot exchange between U. S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. and another defense lawyer, Albert Johnson, over whether the prosecution had withheld photographs made by bank cameras which showed guns pointed at Miss Hearst during the holdup.

Johnson said the enlarged stills made available to the defense only after the government rested gave a different impression of what happened in the bank and on that grounds asked for dismissal of the indictment.

Browning said the defense had access to the same movie negatives as the government and said he denied in any event that the enlarged photographs were "exculpatory" evidence.

Carter earlier Monday had refused to admit before the jury the testimony of an expert on "speech patterns" who said she was certain that Miss Hearst was not the author of revolutionary statements she made on tape recordings during her captivity or documents saying she joined the bank robbery willingly.

Dr. Margaret Singer, a clinical psychologist at the University of California at Berkeley, said the words were written for her by SLA members Angela Atwood and William and Emily Harris and did not reflect the defendant's style.

Judge Carter ruled there was no precedent for testimony by an expert on speech patterns no matter how well qualified, and that Miss Singer's testimony could lengthen the trial by days without providing necessary backup of the testimony given by three defense psychiatrists.

The arguments over the photographs inside the bank got into highly technical grounds of "masking" and the difference shown in 5-by-7 inch prints compared with 8-by-10 inch stills.

FBI photographic expert Vernon Kipping said there was no attempt to deliberately "trim" anything in the pictures, but he acknowledged that the larger prints did show SLA member Camella Hall pointing a rifle in the direction of Miss Hearst while the smaller ones left Miss Hall out.

On the stand with the jury out of the courtroom, Dr. Singer said her study of 25 sections of seven tape-recordings in which Miss Hearst's voice was heard showed she made only five of them spontaneously and using her own words.

Thompson denies Colson report

Nixon administration never ordered Kerner prosecution

by STEVE BROWN

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson Monday said no one in the Nixon administration ever ordered him to prosecute ex-Gov. Otto Kerner or any other official corruption case.

Thompson, who served as the U.S. Attorney in Chicago during much of Nixon's administration, made the denial in the wake of reports by Charles Colson, a convicted Watergate conspirator, that the U.S. Dept. of Justice ran a "get Daley" campaign.

Thompson also labeled as "slanderous" a comment from Chicago Mayor Richard Daley that Thompson's office ran a campaign to get him.

"Everyone knows that. You don't need Colson to tell you that. All you have to do is find out who was here in the last five or six years and what they did," Daley told reporters.

"That's just so much bunk," Thompson told The Herald while campaigning downstate.

Thompson said Colson's comments were "not a new story." Colson was in Chicago promoting a new book.

"At no time during the five years I served as U.S. Attorney did anyone in the Nixon Administration ever tell me who to prosecute," he said.

Thompson criticized Daley, because he said Daley comments also touched a number of career employes who are still working for the Justice Department.

"What does offend me is that this slanders the juries and the career government officials. It is alright to take after me but don't slander their work," he said.

Colson said he would be willing to sign an affidavit, swearing that he heard ex-President Richard Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell discuss a campaign to prosecute Chicago Democrats.

Colson said he heard Nixon tell Mitchell, "Alright, but not the mayor himself . . ."

Colson said while he had no specific information regarding Kerner's prosecution, there was talk about getting the enemies, and that Kerner would certainly have been included in that group. Kerner was paroled last year from prison on a racetrack bribe and fraud conviction. He is now seeking a pardon.

Thompson admitted the budget for his office was increased beyond that of other district attorney's offices in the country, but noted the office was kept below strength during several Democratic administrations.

"They did not want an independent prosecutor running around. They did not want any extra investigations," he said.

Thompson also noted the Kerner investigation was started by career Internal Revenue Service officials in Chicago in 1968, during Lyndon Johnson's administration.

"I have never played politics with this office. If I did I could have run around and made charges about Elard Realty (a real estate firm owned by Daley) or Heil and Heil (an insurance company which employed the mayor's son and received much of the city's business) but I did not, because there were no federal violations there. He knows better than that."

U.S. pursues 'peace through strength'

A Senate Commerce subcommittee Monday heard testimony that automobile owners have been forced to pay significantly higher prices to replace parts damaged in accidents because manufacturers and dealers monopolize the sale of parts to garages. Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, chairman of the consumer subcommittee, said the panel was holding hearings because of a more than 15 per cent increase in the price of crash parts in the last six months of 1975 and a 150 per cent increase in the last nine years. The cost of crash parts is so high, Moss said, that it would cost $23,000 today to repair a completely demolished car that cost $5,500 when new.

Anheuser-Bush workers on strike

Teamsters went on strike Monday and shut down all nine plants of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., the world's largest brewer. The company said it should be a month before consumers would begin to miss the company's beer on store shelves. The company makes Budweiser, Busch and Michelob beer. About 8,000 workers at the company's breweries nationwide were affected, including 4,000 at the company's main plant in south St. Louis. Union officials said nonmonetary issues caused the contract dispute.

Two kidnapers of Niehous identified

Police in Caracas Monday identified two of the seven ultraleftist kidnapers of American William Niehous, 45, a glass industry executive from Toledo. They also located an abandoned car which was used in the Friday night abduction and recovered the clothing that Niehous was wearing when kidnaped.

The kidnapers said they were not interested in ransom and that Niehous would be summarily executed if there is any display of police repression against leftist groups.

OAU endorses Marxist victory in Angola

Ministers of the 47-nation Organization of African Unity Monday endorsed the Marxist victory in Angola and pledged support to a military campaign against South Africa. The ministers decided to seek an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council to discuss what they termed South Africa's "aggression" against Angola where South African troops are stationed in the southern region to protect a South African-financed dam project. OAU spokesmen made no reference to the 12,000 Cuban troops who spearheaded the fight against pro-Western independence movements in Angola.

The market

Prices edge higher in slow trading

Blue chips rallied Monday to lead prices higher on the New York Stock Exchange, but indications the Federal Reserve Board had tightened credit resulted in the second slowest trading day of the year. Down six points in the early afternoon, the Dow Jones industrial average rallied to gain 2.75 points to 975.36 in a demonstration of blue-chip buying strength. Volume totaled 22,070,000 shares, down sharply from the 26,940,000 traded Friday and the slowest since Jan. 2 when only 10.3 million shares were traded. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.31 to 100.02.

Move to dismiss Patty case denied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The defense rested in the trial of Patricia Hearst Monday with an unsuccessful parting shot asking that all charges be dismissed on grounds the government had withheld evidence tending to show her innocent.

U. S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter denied the motion, and the prosecution Tuesday will begin its windup rebuttal which could send the case to the jury by Friday but more likely early next week.

"Your honor, the defense rests," said attorney F. Lee Bailey after 11 days of testimony which starred Miss Hearst in a week on the witness stand during which she swore she joined a bank robbery out of sheer terror of her kidnapers.

There was a hot exchange between U. S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr. and another defense lawyer, Albert Johnson, over whether the prosecution had withheld photographs made by bank cameras which showed guns pointed at Miss Hearst during the holdup.

Johnson said the enlarged stills made available to the defense only after the government rested gave a different impression of what happened in the bank and on that grounds asked for dismissal of the indictment.

Browning said the defense had access to the same movie negatives as the government and said he denied in any event that the enlarged photographs were "exculpatory" evidence.

Carter earlier Monday had refused to admit before the jury the testimony of an expert on "speech patterns" who said she was certain that Miss Hearst was not the author of revolutionary statements she made on tape recordings during her captivity or documents saying she joined the bank robbery willingly.

Dr. Margaret Singer, a clinical psychologist at the University of California at Berkeley, said the words were written for her by SLA members Angela Atwood and William and Emily Harris and did not reflect the defendant's style.

Judge Carter ruled there was no precedent for testimony by an expert on speech patterns no matter how well qualified, and that Miss Singer's testimony could lengthen the trial by days without providing necessary backup of the testimony given by three defense psychiatrists.

The arguments over the photographs inside the bank got into highly technical grounds of "masking" and the difference shown in 5-by-7 inch prints compared with 8-by-10 inch stills.

FBI photographic expert Vernon Kipping said there was no attempt to deliberately "trim" anything in the pictures, but he acknowledged that the larger prints did show SLA member Camella Hall pointing a rifle in the direction of Miss Hearst while the smaller ones left Miss Hall out.

On the stand with the jury out of the courtroom, Dr. Singer said her study of 25 sections of seven tape-recordings in which Miss Hearst's voice was heard showed she made only five of them spontaneously and using her own words.

Thompson denies Colson report

Nixon administration never ordered Kerner prosecution

by STEVE BROWN

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson Monday said no one in the Nixon administration ever ordered him to prosecute ex-Gov. Otto Kerner or any other official corruption case.

Thompson, who served as the U.S. Attorney in Chicago during much of Nixon's administration, made the denial in the wake of reports by Charles Colson, a convicted Watergate conspirator, that the U.S. Dept. of Justice ran a "get Daley" campaign.

Thompson also labeled as "slanderous" a comment from Chicago Mayor Richard Daley that Thompson's office ran a campaign to get him.

"Everyone knows that. You don't need Colson to tell you that. All you have to do is find out who was here in the last five or six years and what they did," Daley told reporters.

"That's just so much bunk," Thompson told The Herald while campaigning downstate.

Thompson said Colson's comments were "not a new story." Colson was in Chicago promoting a new book.

"At no time during the five years I served as U.S. Attorney did anyone in the Nixon Administration ever tell me who to prosecute," he said.

Thompson criticized Daley, because he said Daley comments also touched a number of career employes who are still working for the Justice Department.

"What does offend me is that this slanders the juries and the career government officials. It is alright to take after me but don't slander their work," he said.

Colson said he would be willing to sign an affidavit, swearing that he heard ex-President Richard Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell discuss a campaign to prosecute Chicago Democrats.

Colson said he heard Nixon tell Mitchell, "Alright, but not the mayor himself . . ."

Colson said while he had no specific information regarding Kerner's prosecution, there was talk about getting the enemies, and that Kerner would certainly have been included in that group. Kerner was paroled last year from prison on a racetrack bribe and fraud conviction. He is now seeking a pardon.

Thompson admitted the budget for his office was increased beyond that of other district attorney's offices in the country, but noted the office was kept below strength during several Democratic administrations.

"They did not want an independent prosecutor running around. They did not want any extra investigations," he said.

Thompson also noted the Kerner investigation was started by career Internal Revenue Service officials in Chicago in 1968, during Lyndon Johnson's administration.

"I have never played politics with this office. If I did I could have run around and made charges about Elard Realty (a real estate firm owned by Daley) or Heil and Heil (an insurance company which employed the mayor's son and received much of the city's business) but I did not, because there were no federal violations there. He knows better than that."

"PARENTS FROM the old country recognized what education could do for their children," Filosa said. He and his four brothers and one sister were encouraged to attend school. All but one are college graduates.

As a boy, Filosa wanted to join the Federal Bureau of Investigation which then recruited most of its men from business or law schools. So Filosa majored in commerce at Notre Dame and was graduated in 1958, but his eyesight was too poor for the bureau's physical requirements. He spent three years with the Internal Revenue Service.

Starting law school later in life allowed Filosa to see many of the law's practical applications and "to draw on a lot more experience in living" than some of his younger classmates. Filosa and his wife Irene entertained some of the younger law students at a barbecue at their home at 598 Stephen Dr. last summer.

The Filosas will have been married 20 years this June and without her, Filosa said, his law degree would still be a dream. Mrs. Filosa was "relieved" at her husband's graduation. "Now the kitchen can close once in a while," she said.

BUT HER RELIEF might be premature because Filosa is not done yet. He plans to go to Harper College next fall "to fill in some of the gaps" in economics and math.

Eventually he wants to get out of the classroom and into the courtroom. He took the Illinois bar exam last week, but won't hear its results for at least seven weeks. Whatever its outcome, he plans to continue as law clerk for the Chicago law firm of Schippers, Betar, Lamendella & O'Brien.

The graying Filosa is eagerly awaiting his first trial appearance when he makes some serious procedural error.

"The judge will look down at me and say, 'Mr. Filosa, you should know better than that,' and I can say, 'No way, Judge, I just started . . .' "

$754,626 budget cut won't hurt children: official

Almost $754,626 could be cut from the 1976-77 Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 budget without hurting the current educational program, according to figures presented to the board of education Monday.

Al Stone, associate superintendent, presented figures showing possible savings of about $234,000 through cutbacks in administration, special education, secretaries, custodians and other areas not affecting classroom teachers.

The cutbacks would be in addition to possible budget reductions of $520,500 presented to the board in February.

Last month, Stone told the board an anticipated 4 per cent enrollment decline by next September would allow the district to cut about 30 teachers without changing the student-teacher ratio.

Reducing the number of teachers would save about $354,500, he said.

The cutbacks would prevent the district from facing a deficit in the 1976-77 budget if inflation is kept to 5 per cent, Stone said.

"When the 5 per cent cost-inflation factor is exceeded in salary increases and in other areas, we'd begin to have a real financial problem," he said.

The administration had earlier projected a deficit of about $2.3 million if no cuts were made in the budget and the district is hit with 8 per cent inflation.

The following budget cutbacks were proposed Monday by Stone:

- Reducing administration staff for a savings of $71,000.
- Cutting special education services proportionate to the decline in enrollment, but within state requirements, saving $39,300.
- Reducing secretarial help in the central office and in schools, saving $26,900.
- Cutting custodial help, saving $25,800.
- Reducing the number of substitute teachers needed because of the reduction in teaching staff, saving $6,142.
- Cutting legal advisers' fees by $10,000 and financial advisers' fees by $14,600.

Other potential savings were listed as: fringe benefits, $14,610; miscellaneous administrative expenses, $4,409; summer secretarial help, $7,827; teacher workshops, $6,000; and elimination of student teacher interns, $2,000.

Stone earlier had recommended potential savings totaling $166,073 from cutbacks in supplies and equipment purchases.

Board Pres. Judith Zanca asked if the reductions proposed for secretarial and custodial staffs meant the district would release these staff members.

Stone said he anticipated these savings could be met by a reduction in the number of hours staffers worked.

Wendel Peterson, a teacher, asked, "How much are we reducing the educational output in the district? We need to consider that."

Stone said these proposals were presented with the idea the district would maintain its current education programs. He said they were presented as close as possible in line within the anticipated 4 per cent decline in enrollment.

Teachers to picket Dist. 63 meet in budget cuts protest

by JUDY JOBBITT

Teachers in East Maine Dist. 63 plan to picket the board of education meeting tonight to protest recent budget cuts totaling more than $1 million.

Teachers plan to picket starting at 7 p.m. at Apollo Junior High School, 10100 Dee Rd., Maine Township. The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

"Our main concern is that most of the cuts are of the teaching staff," said Lou White, teachers' union officer. "There is no need to do that. The board has two more years before they have to cut. And they haven't cut any administrators. We don't feel all this is necessary for next year."

Last month the board directed the administration to prepare the 1976-77 budget with cuts totaling more than $1 million from this year's budget.

Budget cuts approved by the board included reducing the junior high teaching staff from 65.5 to 45.5 teachers, which would save about $214,000. The administration figured the staffing ratio would increase from 16.3 students per teacher to 21.1.

THE BOARD ALSO approved cutting five elementary school teachers, which would not affect class size because of declining enrollment. Other cuts included reducing the number of elementary art, vocal music and physical education teachers from nine to seven in each subject and eliminating instrumental music in the elementary schools.

The board cut next year's budget because of anticipated deficits in the education and building funds, which will exceed $5 million in both funds by the 1979-80 school year if no cuts are made.

ACCORDING TO figures released in August, the district anticipates an $81,000 deficit in the building fund this year and a $570,000 deficit in the education fund by the 1977-78 school year.

Teachers also passed out leaflets in Dist. 63 neighborhoods last weekend to "get parents to know what is going on and to get them to the board meeting to voice their feelings," said Mrs. White.

The leaflet listed several of the budget cuts and questioned, "How can the quality of education remain the same if the planned cuts are made?"

Dist. 26 staffing needs on board agenda tonight

Staffing plans for the 1976-77 school year will be discussed by the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education at 8 p.m. today at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

The board will hear administration recommendations on adjustments in the pupil-teacher ratio and resulting staff changes which might be necessary to avoid a budget deficit in the district.

Without local tax and state aid increases, Dist. 26 faces bankruptcy as early as 1977-78 if operations continue at the present level. A district citizens' committee is studying solutions to the financial crisis.

Last year the district cut seven teachers and trimmed programs to reduce the budget deficit. However, with decreased state aid because of declining enrollments and increased costs, the district continues to face a financial crunch.

Other proposals the district is considering to reduce its budget deficit include raising local taxes through a referendum, consolidating Dist. 26 with another elementary school district and acquiring additional funds from the state. However, the board will concentrate tonight on the impact of personnel changes on the budget.

Township welfare funds to 'make it'

Elk Grove Township welfare funds, thought to be insufficient several months ago, will last through the fiscal year ending March 31.

"We're going to make it," Township Supervisor Richard M. Hall said Monday night.

Hall said the general assistance fund had expenses of $4,101.41 during February, while income was $1,535.90. This leaves a balance of $12,238.38 in the account, he said.

The February receipts were the first from the 1975 real estate taxes, Hall said, adding the receipts will be increase during the next few months.

Last November, when the fund's balance was only $16,000 to last for four months, the township board considered the issuance of tax anticipation warrants. Officials said Monday night this action won't be necessary.

The anticipated deficit was forestalled because of decreases in the number of township welfare cases. Last February, there was a high of 178 cases, affecting 527 people. The current number of cases is 53.

$159,570 for 9 social agencies

Maine Township provided $159,570 in federal revenue-sharing funds to nine local social agencies in 1975, said Township Supervisor James J. Dowd.

The Maine Center for Mental Health and Family Services received $60,000, the largest share of the township's revenue sharing funds. The township grant was used by the center for general operations, to help pay for the acquisition of a permanent facility in Park Ridge and a halfway house in Des Plaines.

The second largest grant of $27,250, was given to Clearbrook Center, Rolling Meadows. Clearbrook, which operates a workshop, day school and live-in facility for the retarded, serves 47 residents of Maine Township and residents of surrounding communities.

The Maine Township Council on Alcoholism, Des Plaines, received $25,000 in township revenue sharing funds to provide counseling, referral and educational services to residents.

JACK CALLAGHAN, council executive director, said the organization made more than 50 educational presentations to community groups, and has counseled almost 200 persons in its first year of operation.

Other groups received township revenue sharing funds in the following amounts in 1975: Maine Township Senior Citizens, $10,000; Northwest Suburban Aid to the Retarded, $10,000; and Maine-Niles Assn. of Special Recreation for the Handicapped, $10,000.

Also, the Coffeehouse Ministeries of Park Ridge, a youth counseling group, received $5,000; the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center, $5,000; and Northwest Suburban Headstart, $4,320.

Dowd said the township considered using some of the funds to obtain permanent quarters, but instead decided to use the money for social programs. The township occupies rented offices at 2510 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines.

He added that township supervisors plan to use 1976 revenue sharing for similar social programs.

Although 1976 is the last year of the federal revenue sharing law, Dowd said he hopes Congress will extend the program.

Trash cans get Bicentennial 'coat'

Just about everything is grist for the Bicentennial mill these days — even Des Plaines' public trash containers.

Not to be outdone by Mount Prospect's red, white and blue Bicentennial water tower or the Wheeling carillon, Des Plaines city fathers had the containers decked out with patriotic colors and ennobled with a Bicentennial logo.

The words "Des Plaines Celebrates" are printed on them to let everybody know the nation's 200th birthday is not far away.

The program is part of the city Bicentennial commission's and the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce's plans to spruce up the city in a fitting way for the Fourth of July.

MOST OF THE work on the trash containers has been done by Ray Miller, an employe of the city public works department. Some of the containers already can be seen in the downtown area, and 65 in all will be on the streets when completed.

David Wolf, chairman of the Bicentennial commission, said the decorative trash containers are "just a beginning."

"Des Plaines, like other towns, should be festively decorated for the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution," he said. "We can spruce up the neighborhoods, plant red, white and blue flowers and fly our flag — every day — in every neighborhood."

Other beautification programs planned include installation of eight large metal discs at main intersections in the city, and an "Avenue of Flags" extending along Lee Street and part of Oakton Street.

Residents with other suggestions about the Bicentennial celebration are asked to call the commission office at 827-1776.

The way we see it

Who will dare to speak out?

A controversy that shook the Arlington Heights police department and village government for several weeks appears at an end.

Allegations were made that poor morale and mismanagement interfered with the effectiveness of the police department. The long-time chief of the department, L. W. Calderwood, came under indirect criticism, and soon the central question became: How long should the 48-year veteran of police work continue to serve.

Word went out that Calderwood would not retire under fire.

Well, the chief was given a clean bill of health by the men of his department and by the village board.

Then Calderwood, who earlier had disclaimed plans to retire, announced he would be leaving his post by the end of this year.

Everything turned out well.

Or did it?

Two people had brought the issue into sharp focus: former Trustee Alice Harms and former Police Capt. Jack Aldrich.

We are not convinced they brought it to the public's attention in the best possible way, but perhaps they had no better route open to them.

Among the things that surfaced during a village board inquiry into their charges was a previously suppressed study by the village. It showed there were, indeed, problems in the department.

Among other things that surfaced were some really nasty official attacks on Harms and Aldrich. A sample: Trustee Auguest Bettman's characterization of Aldrich's action as "cowardly" and if that were not enough, "chicken."

Harms and Aldrich took a long simmering issue to the public and were the apparent catalysts for a needed change. In the process, everyone's feelings were spared but theirs; they have been subjected to real personal abuse.

We wonder, in the future when unpopular questions need raising, who will dare speak out?

If our relations are improving, Henry, why is he shopping so much more?

No spring training? Then cancel spring!

The crack of the bat could be replaced by the whack of the judge's gavel this year.

Because of a legal dispute involving baseball's reserve clause, the start of the traditional spring training has been postponed, and there's a shadow looming over the April start of the baseball season.

Our sports pages can fill you in on the specifics, especially about the White Sox's Bill Veeck. In his usual maverick fashion, Veeck plans a kind of rag-tag training this week for a group of minor league ballplayers.

More power to you, Bill Veeck, for we need your brashness to soften the threatened gloom of a baseball-less spring. Spring and baseball are one and the same, and if they decide to cancel baseball this spring, perhaps they should cancel spring, too.

On this day in history:

• In 1899, Congress established Mt. Rainier National Park in Washington state.

• In 1927, Babe Ruth of the New York Yankees signed for $70,000, the highest paid at the time with practically no income taxes.

• In 1945, units of the U.S 9th Army reached the Rhine River opposite Dusseldorf, Germany.

• In 1975, three men set off explosions that destroyed a multimillion dollar rubber factory in Shelton, Conn. No one was injured.

A thought for the day: British statesman John Viscount Morley said, "In my creed, waste of public money is like the sin against the Holy Ghost."

'He should research accusations'

Based on Mike Klein's column of Feb. 23 regarding Governor Walker's visit to Wheeling High School, it appears that he was counting ants on the cafeteria floor when he should have been researching his accusations.

Perhaps someone should familiarize him with the voting laws. If he's aware that 18-year-olds can vote, then he'd know that high school seniors can vote. A vast majority of the seniors at Wheeling High School are 18. Those who can't vote do have a great impact on the political views of their parents. Thus, Walker's visit was far from insignificant.

Had he applied this simple bit of analysis, Klein would have realized the importance of the Governor's "accountability sessions."

Rather than paint a negative picture of Wheeling High School from the ants on the floor to the empty heads of the students, he should have mentioned the most important reason that Walker was at Wheeling. He actually came to Wheeling to present a proclamation to Mr. Jack Williamson, the Wheeling band director, designating the Wheeling High School band as the official Bicentennial band to represent the State of Illinois in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Furthermore, Klein's implications that faculty members asked students to challenge Walker on issues, such as the teachers' pension fund, special education cutbacks and summer school funding, is a direct insult to the student body.

The pension fund is a major issue that says a lot about the job Walker has done. The young man who asked about special education cutbacks happens to be blind and takes a strong interest in the kind of education he's going to get. Summer school has a direct effect on quite a number of students.

Had he spent more time researching than crawling around the floor of our cafeteria, he would have learned about the memorandum which was from the director of student activities to the faculty.

Briefly, the memorandum discussed the agenda for Walker's visit. Also included was a specific request for the faculty. "You might suggest that some of your students research Governor Walker's position on current issues and then develop appropriate questions." In conclusion, it read, "To help alleviate the 'nervousness factor' the students or faculty may wish to write questions out on a card."

There are quite a number of intellectual students who are quite capable of doing research on the campaign issues of the day. They are also quite capable of forming intellectual questions all by themselves.

Let's take a look at Klein's research. He provided us with a perfect example of incomplete and inadequate reporting. His opinion poll reached three sophomore girls who asked no questions of the Governor and aren't even of voting age. Is that a cross section of the student body?

By the way, we already have independent study as well as a smoking area.

So, before Mr. Klein tries to write like Gary Deeb, he should try working on the fundamental law of journalism — get the facts straight.

I'd welcome a response from him. I expect an apology to the students and faculty of Wheeling High School. He might want to say something nice to the custodial staff for those cracks about ants.

'Come out into the open,' says chief to residents

It is discouraging to receive a letter from "a concerned resident," wherein that resident, who feels "I express the concern of all of my neighbors . . ." refuses to be identified. Such a letter was dated Feb. 20.

The problems expressed by the concerned resident are community-wide. The same problems plague every other community as well. Our patrols are constantly alert to prevent the problems and to apprehend offenders of those offenses we cannot prevent.

The concerned resident cites a number of nuisances, then ends with " . . . and now bombs." One bomb has been found in the history of Elk Grove Village. That bomb was defused by an Elk Grove police officer at great personal risk. The juvenile who made the bomb was arrested and is in the custody of the juvenile branch of the Circuit Court of Cook County.

Concerned residents should have enough confidence in their village officials to identify themselves; their specific complaints as to location, frequency and time of day; and be willing and ready to sign complaints against offenders or to be witnesses should court action ensue.

Where a letter, such as was received today (Feb. 23), is unidentified as to sender or location of incidents of concern to the sender — that person has no right to complain that "this letter will probably get no more attention than the comment: 'just another villager rambling off.' "

"Is this situation going to improve?" Not until "a concerned resident," and the neighbors represented, take on names and faces — naming some times and places.

Jackson campaign plods along

'Too virtuous to be interesting'

MIAMI — One year after he formally began campaigning for the presidency, Sen. Henry Jackson has succeeded in everything except success.

He has collected more money than anyone except George Wallace. He trails only Gerald Ford in the accumulation of powerful political support. He has become with Wallace, Ford and Ronald Reagan — the best known of all contenders.

Alas, to what end? He's failed to convince the nation he will ever be its chief executive.

IN TERMS OF early-line potential, Jackson remains merely one of the pack. Thus far Jimmy Carter has gotten more votes, Hubert Humphrey has had more press, and Fred Harris has generated more interest. The latter point is most serious for Jackson. He seems to be of concern to everyone but the people. He can't shake the public idea that he's dull. Maybe, as he says, "I'm too virtuous to be interesting."

Virtuous indeed. Of no-nonsense Norwegian stock, Jackson believes in self sacrifice and moderation. Prune juice and bran for breakfast. Twelve to 15 hour days even in non-election years. His records show he pays every penny of his taxes, donates most of his non-Senate earnings to charity ($34,350 last year), and drives a 15-year-old Chevrolet.

Henry M. Jackson

During the last presidential campaign, Richard Nixon's aides tried to pass the word Jackson was a homosexual. He wasn't even interested in girls until age 49, when he finally married. Actually he always dated, but according to stories he used to invite girls up to his apartment to listen to radio news broadcasts.

Jackson's virtues are also apparent in his political philosophies. He is a centrist, a man of consensus, in most respects a devotee of common sense. To the extent that he rejects extremism at either pole, he probably represents as large a body of sentiment in America as any other presidential candidate. He is a conservationist who is comfortable with industry. He is an anti-Communist who bitterly opposed the tactics and influence of Joseph McCarthy. He has voted for all civil rights legislation but opposes forced school busing.

What's more, Jackson's public record is virtuous. In 35 years in Congress (he and three others are tied for eighth in Senate seniority) he has not suffered a hint of scandal. He is accused rightly of sometimes using his committee clout for publicity purposes, but this is hardly an impeachable offense. Almost always he is an open legislator, even an open campaigner; no other member of Congress or presidential contender discusses the issues in more admirable detail.

AND SO HOW DOES all this ethicality work to his detriment? His humdrum person is not explanation enough. Though it is true the senator too often resembles the rhetorical bore who is here today and here tomorrow, his fundamental campaign problem is probably rooted deeper than this. The fact is, Jackson's virtue is not of the kind acceptable to the activist element of the Democratic party which is quite clearly the dominating force in this season's nominating process. Voters aside, the nominee will again be selected by the loud hustlers.

Jackson can't be forgiven for supporting Vietnam, for voting for the supersonic transport, for once being so honest as to say "Thank God for the military-industrial complex." Activist Democrats call him the Pentagon Populist, a Whig on detente. They shudder that he has embraced Patrick Moynihan as a great American, and that he ends his campaign addresses with reference to fears that the world may become one in which the Soviet Union is the superior power. This is the stuff of votes, perhaps, but activists would rather lose well than win badly.

For his part, Jackson has tried for reconciliation only somewhat. He has, for example, campaigned for activists such as Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., and has voted against aid to Angola. On the other hand, he is too virtuous to compromise much, and continues to refer to party foes as phonies and extremists. The division is thus too broad to heal easily.

And so it is. Henry Jackson remains the kind of man who could be president, but won't, and this clearly says something negative about the one last major party in the nation.

"I don't have any attitudes of my very own. The media has shaped all of my attitudes!"

The way we see it

Who will dare to speak out?

A controversy that shook the Arlington Heights police department and village government for several weeks appears at an end.

Allegations were made that poor morale and mismanagement interfered with the effectiveness of the police department. The long-time chief of the department, L. W. Calderwood, came under indirect criticism, and soon the central question became: How long should the 48-year veteran of police work continue to serve.

Word went out that Calderwood would not retire under fire.

Well, the chief was given a clean bill of health by the men of his department and by the village board.

Then Calderwood, who earlier had disclaimed plans to retire, announced he would be leaving his post by the end of this year.

Everything turned out well.

Or did it?

Two people had brought the issue into sharp focus: former Trustee Alice Harms and former Police Capt. Jack Aldrich.

We are not convinced they brought it to the public's attention in the best possible way, but perhaps they had no better route open to them.

Among the things that surfaced during a village board inquiry into their charges was a previously suppressed study by the village. It showed there were, indeed, problems in the department.

Among other things that surfaced were some really nasty official attacks on Harms and Aldrich. A sample: Trustee Auguest Bettman's characterization of Aldrich's action as "cowardly" and if that were not enough, "chicken."

Harms and Aldrich took a long simmering issue to the public and were the apparent catalysts for a needed change. In the process, everyone's feelings were spared but theirs; they have been subjected to real personal abuse.

We wonder, in the future when unpopular questions need raising, who will dare speak out?

If our relations are improving, Henry, why is he shopping so much more?

Bicyclists gear for biggest trip of 'em all

4,100-mile route set up to note U.S. Bicentennial

by JILL BETTNER

Bikecentennial '76, a series of cross-country and regional bicycle tours available for the first time this summer, promises a memorable vacation for anyone with a wandering spirit and love of adventure.

The Trans-America Trail, to be inaugurated in May, spans 25 national forests, vast stretches of primitive and wilderness areas as well as prairies, grasslands and deserts.

Tours lasting from 12 to 82 days are offered along the 4,100-mile route specially designed to give riders a close look at rural America on her 200th birthday.

THE ROUTE WAS developed after three years of research by Bikecentennial Inc., a nonprofit organization based in Missoula, Mont., that holds program status with the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Assistance was given by the U. S. Forest Service and other federal and state agencies as well as Bicentennial groups and volunteers and officials of local communities along the trail.

A large share of the monetary support for the project was donated by ARBA, the Montant Bicentennial and members of the bicycle industry. The greatest source of revenue, however, has been contributed by those who have joined the organization. Bikecentennial presently has 4,000 members throughout the United States and the world.

The tours the organization will sponsor this summer are geared for the beginning and intermediate long-distance rider. Participants of all ages are welcome, although anyone under 20 must have a release from a parent or legal guardian; 16-year-olds must have at least three references and those under 15 must be accompanied by parent or legal guardian.

All tours will be in groups of between eight and 12 riders, assisted by a trained leader. Maps and guidebooks will be provided for all participants.

FRIENDS MAY RIDE with friends and groups of families will be organized to accommodate their special needs. If sufficient interest is shown, child-care vans will be arranged on some trips to transport children who are too young to ride the scheduled distance every day.

Trips amy also be arranged for larger special groups wanting to ride together or for independent riders who want to travel alone or those who want to plan their own itineraries.

Accommodations along the route will consist of a chain of camping areas and low-cost "Bike-Inns" in local communities, providing sleeping space in schools, community halls, hotels and other public and commercial buildings. Riders also will receive a list of hotels, motels and tourist homes available on the trail.

All cross-country Trans-America tours will depart daily from either Reedsport, Ore., on the west coast or Yorktown, Va., on the east coast between May 16 and June 16.

THE 82-DAY transcontinental trip incorporates all but one of the shorter regional trips. The cost of the tour is $580 for campers and $920 for riders who stay at Bike-Inns.

Regional trips of between 12 and 45 days range in cost from $110 to $330 for campers and $160 and $525 for Bike-Inn accommodations.

A sampling of the regional trips available includes a 15-day ride from Newton, Kan., to Carbondale, Ill., through pine-forested hills and rolling farmland. Riders will cross the Mississippi River into Illinois on a small "working man's" ferry.

The 21-day "Chieftain Trail" tour will take riders from Reedsport, Ore., to Missoula, Mont., into the Gold Rush country of eastern Oregon, to Canyon City and Whitney ghost town, down into the Snake River Gorge, then back up through the Clearwater mountains.

RIDERS WHO OPT for the 45-day "Golden Spoke Specials" that will depart from eilther coast between June 1 and July 20 will meet in the middle to participate in special Trans-America Trail inauguration ceremonies. The ceremonies naturally will include driving a golden spoke at the midway point of the route.

Bikecentennial trips will emphasize group cooperation and sharing of skills. Riders are expected to come from all over the world and it is anticipated that more than 80 per cent will be new to the sport of extended bicycle touring.

Camping groups will be expected to plan and prepare their own meals, transport all their own personal equipment and share in carrying in the load of group supplies such as cooking gear. Overnights at bike-inns will be scheduled every few days to allow campers to take showers and mingle with riders on other trips.

Most groups will cover between 50 and 65 miles per day, with a rest day every several days. Beginning and intermediate riders are advised this will mean between five and eight hours of riding, including time allowed for rest stops and other activities.

Those preferring a faster pace may choose to ride with groups who will average between 80 and 120 miles per day, but should only attempt to do so if in top physical condition, familiar with bicycle touring and experienced in riding at fairly high speeds day after day.

For a complete listing of Bikecentennial tours to be offered and detailed information on costs and dates for the trips, write Bikecentennial '76, P. O. Box 1034, Missoula, Mont. 59801.

Bicyclists gear for biggest trip of 'em all

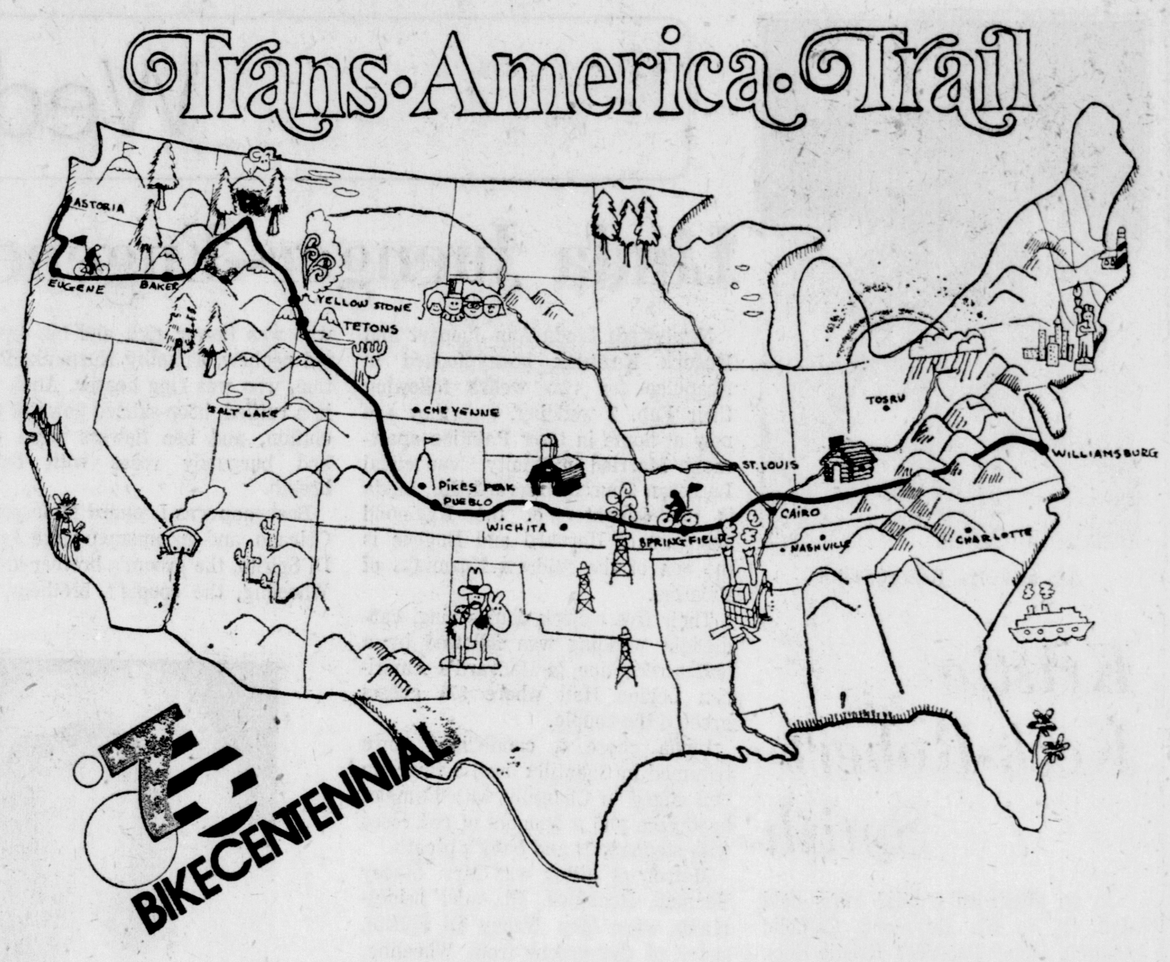
4,100-mile route set up to note U.S. Bicentennial

by JILL BETTNER

Bikecentennial '76, a series of cross-country and regional bicycle tours available for the first time this summer, promises a memorable vacation for anyone with a wandering spirit and love of adventure.

The Trans-America Trail, to be inaugurated in May, spans 25 national forests, vast stretches of primitive and wilderness areas as well as prairies, grasslands and deserts.

Tours lasting from 12 to 82 days are offered along the 4,100-mile route specially designed to give riders a close look at rural America on her 200th birthday.



THE ROUTE WAS developed after three years of research by Bikecentennial Inc., a nonprofit organization based in Missoula, Mont., that holds program status with the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Assistance was given by the U. S. Forest Service and other federal and state agencies as well as Bicentennial groups and volunteers and officials of local communities along the trail.

A large share of the monetary support for the project was donated by ARBA, the Montant Bicentennial and members of the bicycle industry. The greatest source of revenue, however, has been contributed by those who have joined the organization. Bikecentennial presently has 4,000 members throughout the United States and the world.

The tours the organization will sponsor this summer are geared for the beginning and intermediate long-distance rider. Participants of all ages are welcome, although anyone under 20 must have a release from a parent or legal guardian; 16-year-olds must have at least three references and those under 15 must be accompanied by parent or legal guardian.

All tours will be in groups of between eight and 12 riders, assisted by a trained leader. Maps and guidebooks will be provided for all participants.

FRIENDS MAY RIDE with friends and groups of families will be organized to accommodate their special needs. If sufficient interest is shown, child-care vans will be arranged on some trips to transport children who are too young to ride the scheduled distance every day.

Trips amy also be arranged for larger special groups wanting to ride together or for independent riders who want to travel alone or those who want to plan their own itineraries.

Accommodations along the route will consist of a chain of camping areas and low-cost "Bike-Inns" in local communities, providing sleeping space in schools, community halls, hotels and other public and commercial buildings. Riders also will receive a list of hotels, motels and tourist homes available on the trail.

All cross-country Trans-America tours will depart daily from either Reedsport, Ore., on the west coast or Yorktown, Va., on the east coast between May 16 and June 16.

THE 82-DAY transcontinental trip incorporates all but one of the shorter regional trips. The cost of the tour is $580 for campers and $920 for riders who stay at Bike-Inns.

Regional trips of between 12 and 45 days range in cost from $110 to $330 for campers and $160 and $525 for Bike-Inn accommodations.

A sampling of the regional trips available includes a 15-day ride from Newton, Kan., to Carbondale, Ill., through pine-forested hills and rolling farmland. Riders will cross the Mississippi River into Illinois on a small "working man's " ferry.

The 21-day "Chieftain Trail" tour will take riders from Reedsport, Ore., to Missoula, Mont., into the Gold Rush country of eastern Oregon, to Canyon City and Whitney ghost town, down into the Snake River Gorge, then back up through the Clearwater mountains.

RIDERS WHO OPT for the 45-day "Golden Spoke Specials" that will depart from eilther coast between June 1 and July 20 will meet in the middle to participate in special Trans-America Trail inauguration ceremonies. The ceremonies naturally will include driving a golden spoke at the midway point of the route.

Bikecentennial trips will emphasize group cooperation and sharing of skills. Riders are expected to come from all over the world and it is anticipated that more than 80 per cent will be new to the sport of extended bicycle touring.

Camping groups will be expected to plan and prepare their own meals, transport all their own personal equipment and share in carrying in the load of group supplies such as cooking gear. Overnights at bike-inns will be scheduled every few days to allow campers to take showers and mingle with riders on other trips.

Most groups will cover between 50 and 65 miles per day, with a rest day every several days. Beginning and intermediate riders are advised this will mean between five and eight hours of riding, including time allowed for rest stops and other activities.

Those preferring a faster pace may choose to ride with groups who will average between 80 and 120 miles per day, but should only attempt to do so if in top physical condition, familiar with bicycle touring and experienced in riding at fairly high speeds day after day.

For a complete listing of Bikecentennial tours to be offered and detailed information on costs and dates for the trips, write Bikecentennial '76, P. O. Box 1034, Missoula, Mont. 59801.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Pinworm infection hard to eliminate

I am in need of answers about pinworms. My 4-year-old daughter has been infected at least a half dozen times within a year. At first it seemed like every couple of months they would recur. The doctor gave me medicines to treat her. Now within six weeks after the last dose she is infected again. It seems that the medicine always takes care of them because I check with the flashlight at night.

She always starts out with a bad stomach ache, then I know enough to check her out again. I have four other children who have had them only occasionally.

When I give the medicine the entire family takes it. I told the doctor about the frequent recurrence. He said sometimes the pinworms stick up in the appendix and don't get treated. He stated that sometimes when the appendix is removed it is crawling with worms. He also stated that the worms can cause symptoms of appendicitis, but that they did not remove an appendix just for pinworms.

I have also heard stories about washing hands before eating. What I can't figure out is why one child the family is so susceptible. An answer would bring relief to our minds.

Pinworms are a very common infection. Fortunately they usually cause more discomfort than harm. The most common symptom is itching around the anal area.

The female worm crawls out of the rectal area at night and this is what produces the itching feeling.

There is some disagreement as whether pinworms actually cause indigestion or upset stomach as you suggest in your letter. It is true that the worms lodge in the blind end of the large colon (cecum) in the area where the appendix is, but they may also be present in much of the large bowel and small intestine. They are usually eliminated with adequate treatment.

The reason that recurrences are so frequent is that the infection is so widespread. Most likely your 4-year-old has not learned proper hygiene yet. In small children, scratching and putting unclean hands to the mouth is a frequent way of reinfecting oneself with another cycle of eggs.

The eggs can also live on bedding and other areas but usually only for a day or two because they don't survive dry air very well.

THE BEST THING I can suggest is to make a real effort to teach your small child better hygiene. Be sure at the beginning of treatment that she is completely bathed and clean and has clean underwear, clean bedding and that this is carried out regularly. Certainly all of the children should wash their hands carefully before eating snacks or otherwise putting their hands to the mouth. When one child in the family is infected it's usually a good idea to treat the entire family as you have been doing.

That's about all you can do. Just keep in mind that they are not serious even though they are distressing. Whenever they recur you'll just have to treat them again.

For information on when and how to treat a cold send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 3-2, Colds and Flu Group, Prevention and Treatment. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

There really is a way to remove masking tape

Dear Dorothy: Talking about removing masking tape you said "there isn't a single solution, unhappily." Well, I've found the solution. Recently, we got some furniture out of storage. To protect the glass doors of a china cabinet, the packers had taped each panel with masking tape diagonally. This had remained for three years. We tried many remedies to no avail. I then tried something I'd heard about — applying vegetable shortening liberally to the tape and leaving it on at last 24 hours. Using paper towels, it came off like magic, and washing with soap and water completed the job. I imagine it would work on appliances, and it won't dull the finish like paint removers. Hope this helps someone else. — Mary Pearson

I am as delighted with this experience as you are. My information came not only from many readers, but also from the manufacturers.

Dear Dorothy: Can anyone tell me how to keep springerles from getting hard? We enjoy them so much, but the only way we have been able to eat them is by dunking them. — Mrs. Ethel Raymond

The word is that if springerles are rolled a little thicker than the recipe calls for or they are not baked too long, they will not get too hard. One suggestion is to put a cut apple in the container in which they're stored. Does anyone have other suggestions?

There really is a way to remove masking tape

Dear Dorothy: Talking about removing masking tape you said "there isn't a single solution, unhappily." Well, I've found the solution. Recently, we got some furniture out of storage. To protect the glass doors of a china cabinet, the packers had taped each panel with masking tape diagonally. This had remained for three years. We tried many remedies to no avail. I then tried something I'd heard about — applying vegetable shortening liberally to the tape and leaving it on at last 24 hours. Using paper towels, it came off like magic, and washing with soap and water completed the job. I imagine it would work on appliances, and it won't dull the finish like paint removers. Hope this helps someone else. — Mary Pearson

I am as delighted with this experience as you are. My information came not only from many readers, but also from the manufacturers.

Dear Dorothy: Can anyone tell me how to keep springerles from getting hard? We enjoy them so much, but the only way we have been able to eat them is by dunking them. — Mrs. Ethel Raymond

The word is that if springerles are rolled a little thicker than the recipe calls for or they are not baked too long, they will not get too hard. One suggestion is to put a cut apple in the container in which they're stored. Does anyone have other suggestions?

Hoffman, Palatine open with triumphs

A Herald Staff Report

Hoffman Estates and Palatine advanced to semi-final play Monday night in the Hoffman Estates Regional Basketball Tournament as "March Madness" for Class AA schools officially got under way in Illinois.

The Hawks defeated Fremd 63-60 in the opener at Hoffman and the Pirates topped Lake Park, 45-42, in the second game.

In opening round play at Buffalo Grove Carmel dumped Highland Park, 67-63, in the first game Monday night, and Lake Forest advanced with a 67-62 victory over Stevenson.

Here's the way the action developed at Hoffman Estates:

HAWKS NUDGE FREMD

Hoffman Estates held off a late Fremd rally to win the opening game of their own regional basketball tournament early Monday evening 63-60.

Led by the 16-point performances of Joe Tully and Ron Warring, the Hawks upped their season chart to 11-14 and earned a crack at Schaumburg in Tuesday's semifinal tilt at 7:30 p.m. Tully and Warring also dominated the boards in a game that saw Viking rallies in the final periods of each half fall shy of the mark.

Hoffman was up 25-15 in the second quarter when Fremd opened their first surge on the outshooting of Greg Schroeder and Dale Hallberg, trimming the gap to 33-29 by halftime.

Early in the third stanza a bucket by Tom Moffat and two free throws by Craig Rawlins knotted the contest at 33-all but Hawk Gene Foster came off the bench shortly afterwards to help his club rebuild a 49-43 lead at the end of three periods.

The next Vike outburst had Hoffman nurturing a scant 61-60 edge going into the last 30 seconds. Fremd's Rick Kolze forced a jump ball with 14 seconds remaining but Derek Storm countered with a steal moments later and was fouled driving for the basket. Storm made good on two free pitches after the gun had sounded.

McKENNA, IUORIO STAR

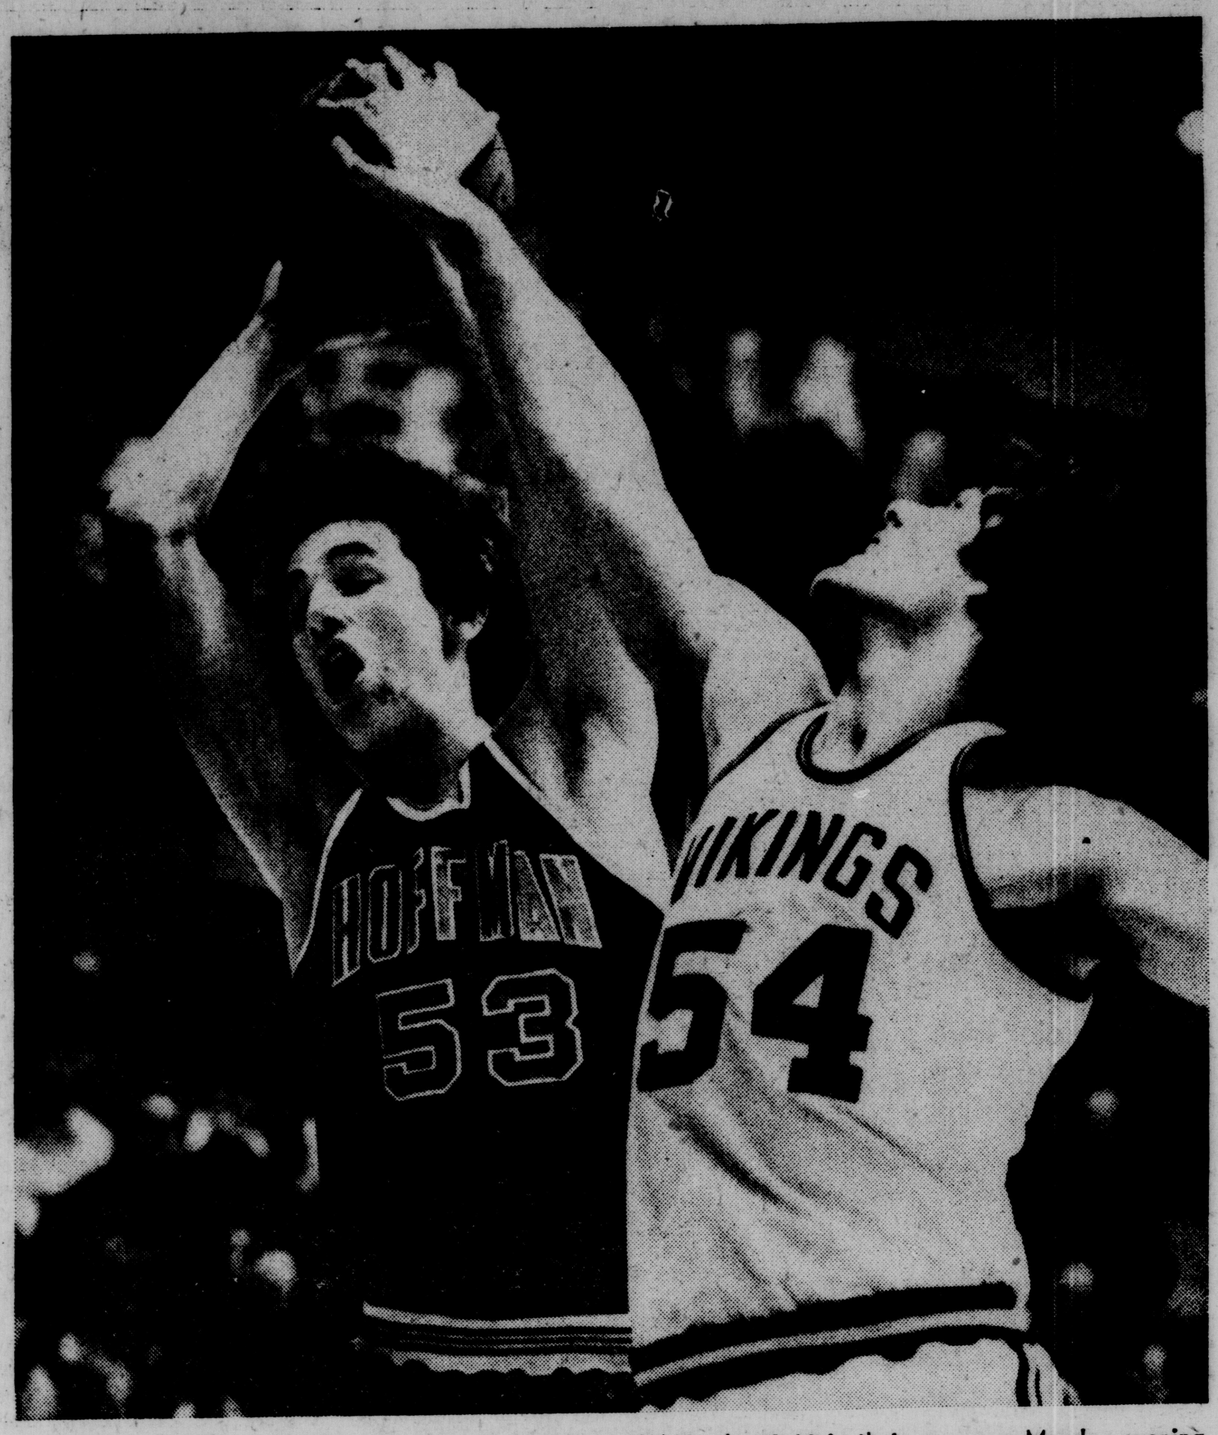
Sparked by Kevin McKenna's shooting and boarding and Tom Iuorio's thievery, Palatine slipped past Lake Park 45-42 in the nightcap regional contest at Hoffman Estates Monday.

McKenna poured in 25 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to pace the Pirates under the nets to their eighth win in 23 games this winter and a Wednesday showdown with Conant at 7:30 in semifinal action.

Iuorio also provided some fireworks, hitting a pair of jumpers in succession to wipe out a 36-36 deadlock in the late going. But the feisty Palatine guard came up with an even more crucial move with 44 seconds to go by pilfering the ball from the Lancers and going in for a layup to salt the verdict away.

Seconds earlier Lake Park had jumped ahead on bucket by Dan Barnes after the Pirates had been in control most of the second half.

Lake Park did own a 27-26 advantage at mid-game but was unable to maintain it. There next lead was with 1:03 to go and McKenna wiped it away by taking a pass from Iuorio in the lane and converting a turnaround jumper. Iuorio then followed up with his clincher.



WARRING PARTY. Ron Warring (53) of Hoffman Estates battles with Paul Gillette of Fremd for board control in an opening regional scufflewonb y the Hawks 63-60 in their own gym Monday evening. Warring paced the victors with 15 points and 14 rebounds.

Five regional tourney tests tonight

Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg will be shooting for victory No. 20 when they open IHSA Class AA regional basketball tournament play at separate sites tonight. Buffalo Grove is hosting its own regional and Schaumburg is entered in the Hoffman Estates tourney.

The Mid-Suburban League champion Bison of Buffalo Grove are 19-4 this season, including a stunning 48-28 win over Conant in last week's title contest. Coach Paul Grady's Bison begin their assault on a regional crown at 7:30 tonight when they face off against the winner of the Highland Park-Carmel game.

Schaumburg, with a 19-5 record, opens at 7:30 against the winner of the Fremd-Hoffman Estates game. The Saxons expect to have Ed Chmiel back from a severe ankle injury suffered in the Schaumburg loss to Conant two weeks ago. Chmiel didn't play when the Saxons lost to Hersey 71-64 in last Tuesday's crossover game.

The Wheeling Regional Tourney gets under way tonight with a pair of games, starting at 7 p.m. when Arlington (11-13) meets Forest View (5-18). The second game matches St. Viator (8-15) and Maine North.

Wheeling and Hersey drew first-round byes and will play tonight's winners in the second round Wednesday. Top-seeded Hersey faces the winner of tonight's opener.

Maine West (16-9) hosts Rolling Meadows (7-16) in the opener of the Maine West Regional tonight at 7:30. The winner there will meet the survivor of Wednesday's Prospect-Elk Grove battle for the title Friday night.

The championship games of the four area tourneys will be played Friday. From there, the tourney champs advance to sectionals at three local sites.

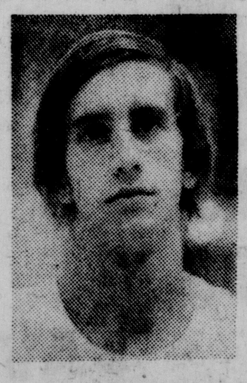
The Buffalo Grove winner moves on to Barrington's sectional, the Hoffman survivor advances to Elgin, and the Wheeling and Maine West champions converge at the Prospect Sectional Tourney.

The sectionals begin March 9.

Coaches name 17 cagers to all-conference squad

Brian Allsmiller

Clyde Glass



Keith Schildt

A glittering, star-studded cast of 17 makes up the Mid-Suburban League All-Conference basketball team chosen by the league's coaches and announced late Monday afternoon by MSL officials.

Among the league's list of premier players are three repeaters from last year's all-conference squad, including Buffalo Grove's talented 6-foot-8 junior Brian Allsmiller, who was a unanimous selection as a sophomore in 1975.

The two remaining all-conference returnees are Hersey's Clyde Glass and Wheeling's Keith Schildt. Both were unanimous choices, as was Allsmiller.

The coaches chose eight players from the North division and nine from the South division because of the extra team in the South. Of the 17 selections, 10 were unanimous picks and four were underclassmen.

The South all-conference selections were Ed Chmiel, John Chmiel, and Jon McIlraith of Schaumburg, Pete Scaffidi and Ron Sulaski of Conant, Bill Wissen of Rolling Meadows, Chris Etter of Prospect, Nate Adams of Forest View and Dave Hornacek of Elk Grove.

The North division team includes Allsmiller, Glass, and Schildt, plus Kevin McKenna of Palatine, Jay McDermott of Hersey, Jim Grandt of Arlington, Rick Kolze of Fremd, and Mike Ledna of Buffalo Grove.

South-division runnerup Schaumburg led all teams with three players in the elite group, including unanimous selections Ed Chmiel and McIlraith. Chmiel's younger brother, John, was the only sophomore honored by the panel of coaches.

Division champions Conant and Buffalo Grove placed two members each on the squad. Hersey, the second-place team in the North, also landed a pair of players on the all-conference team.

Buffalo Grove, North-division and MSL champion, put Ledna, a junior playmaking guard, on the squad along with Allsmiller. Conant sharpshooter Scaffidi and his 6-5 teammate Sulaski were both unanimous selections for the South division Cougars.

Allsmiller's 25-point average and his league-leading rebounding total helped carry the Bison to their first league title after just three years of varsity play. Ledna led the North division in assists while averaging eight points per game.

Perhaps the strangest story is that of McDermott. Hersey's 6-8 redhead was cut from the squad as a freshman, failed to go out as a soph, and spent most of his junior year on the sidelines with a broken leg.

As a senior, McDermott averaged 13 points a game, finished among the top five in rebounding, and was a unanimous pick, as was Hornacek, the Elk Grove star who wound up as the league's fourth-leading scorer.

The all-conference team includes the league's leading scorer, McKenna, who finished the MSL season with a 26.1-per game average. The Pirate junior was a unanimous selection.

The league's next four top scorers were also on the team: Allsmiller, Glass (17.7), Hornacek (17.5) and Schildt (16.0).

Allsmiller, McKenna, and McIlraith all made important strides on the way up the Herald Area alltime scoring ladder. Allsmiller has moved into fourth place during the season and McIlraith and McKenna both edged into the top 10.

Old champ battles back to frustrate golf stars

Jim Murray

I think one of the saddest sights in the world of sport — or any other, for that matter — is an old champion who doesn't have it any more.

One of the memories that makes you wince is that of Joe Louis' balding head bobbing on the ring apron as he was knocked out by Rocky Marciano. Dizzy Dean, with his fastball gone, trying to get batters out with slow stuff on the corners, and a rinky-dink pumping him for a home run has to be a melancholy recollection. Willie Mays misjudging a fly ball he could have caught with his teeth in his prime made most of us want to look away. Dempsey lurching on wobbly legs, Babe Ruth unable to get around on the fastball any more.

So, a lot of us were ready to get out the Kleenexes and sob into our Geritol when a grand old champion suddenly began to take a pasting from people she used to brush off like flies.

It was a little like Everest being traversed by people in sneakers, but there, before our very eyes, was Riviera's golf course being humiliated by golfers she used to bogey with ease. There were 66s and 67s flying all over the place. Guys were bringing the great lady to her knees.

This was a course that had humbled the great — even Nelson faltered here on occasion. Even Nicklaus shot 75s. They held a U.S. Open here and only five players broke par.

But, suddenly, at the end of two rounds in the recent L.A. Open, there were 26 players under par, and one who was almost under birdies. Tom Watson was 12 under par, Hale Irwin was 9.

It was like watching Joan Crawford play somebody's mother. Riviera had become a character actor.

Where were the 80s of yesteryear? Where the double bogeys? The out-of-bounds? The lost balls? The four-putts? Oh, a few people had trouble keeping the ball on the course and out of the trees, but, in general, they were treating our fair lady like it was the Tucson municipal course.

The weather, ordinarily a staunch ally, turned traitor. Bright sun, still winds, fogless fairways greeted the touring pros. The ball rolled, the putts were straight, the scores sank.

On Sunday the two leaders eagled the first hole. Oldtimers shrank behind trees, or prayed for rain, or wind — or an earthquake, for crying out loud. These youngsters were going to score in the 260s, the kind of figures you would expect for Brackenridge Park, not Riviera. Watson was fifteen-under after three holes. It was like kicking a man who was down, tying a can to a dog.

Then, a remarkable thing happened. Groggy, on watery legs, groping to its feet on the ropes, Riviera rose and began to show these kids what it was like when it still had a right hand, a fastball, a cannonball serve, a home-run swing. The red numbers began to tumble off the scoreboard. The greens grew slick. The eucalyptus limbs slapped down tee shots. The ears grew flat, and the course began to growl.

The girl who was tied to the tracks was wrecking the train. Johnny Miller, no less, had difficulty breaking 80. Defending champion Pat Fitzsimons couldn't. Suddenly, it was a midnight trip through a cemetery. Dave Hill, who shot 66 Friday, shot 81 Sunday. The crone turned back into a chorus girl, wicked and heart-breaking. The 13th hole became all but unputtable, the 18th all but unreachable. Great players suddenly discovered they had the flu. The diagnosis was unmistakable — an 8 on a par-4.

Instead of two players in the 260s, there were no players in the 260s. Instead of 26 players under par, there were a dozen.

This was Riviera from the white tees, in some instances — in other words, with one hand strapped behind her back on some holes. It didn't matter. Even starting out 2 under par for the round after only one hole, the course forced a five-shot swing in only six holes.

So, the old champ was not ready to hang them up just yet. She had a great last half. She put several U.S. and British Open champions on a bus home at the cut.

I haven't felt so good since Grover Cleveland Alexander came out of the bullpen and struck out the Yankees with the bases loaded.

Veeck opens Sox camp in defiance of owners

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veeck put his 25 non-roster players through a long workout in the Florida sun Monday, opening spring baseball training in defiance of the rest of the major league owners.

Other clubs have refused to open spring workouts in an effort to pressure players into reaching an agreement with owners on the controversial reserve clause.

About 75 fans gathered to watch, the minor league players go through batting and fielding practice and exercises in the two and a half hour training session.

Veeck, appearing happy and oblivious to the criticism from other owners, told newsmen: "I don't know why, but just the sound of a bat and a ball seems to lift my spirits."

Veeck and White Sox manager Paul Richards said they felt some of the non-roster players who will get a long look by coaches at the training camp may eventually make the club.

"I have a feeling that maybe two or three, and maybe more, might end up" with the club, Veeck said, adding that Chicago's roster was probably the most unsettled among the major league clubs. "That's why spring training is so terribly important to us."

He said unsigned veteran free agents Bob Oliver and Cleon Jones, were among the most enthusiastic of the non-roster ballplayers at the camp.

Veeck told newsmen he was surprised that no other club owners followed his lead and opened spring training before an agreement was reached on the reserve clause.

The White Sox owner said he wished the negotiations and legal arguments over the reserve clause could be handled in private so baseball could continue.

"The weird part" of the current negotiations, he said, is that "there are no winners. There's nothing but losers."

Willie Mays misjudging a fly ball he could have caught with his teeth in his prime made most of us want to look away. Dempsey lurching on wobbly legs, Babe Ruth unable to get around on the fastball any more.

So, a lot of us were ready to get out the Kleenexes and sob into our Geritol when a grand old champion suddenly began to take a pasting from people she used to brush off like flies.

It was a little like Everest being traversed by people in sneakers, but there, before our very eyes, was Riviera's golf course being humiliated by golfers she used to bogey with ease. There were 66s and 67s flying all over the place. Guys were bringing the great lady to her knees.

This was a course that had humbled the great — even Nelson faltered here on occasion. Even Nicklaus shot 75s. They held a U.S. Open here and only five players broke par.

But, suddenly, at the end of two rounds in the recent L.A. Open, there were 26 players under par, and one who was almost under birdies. Tom Watson was 12 under par, Hale Irwin was 9.

It was like watching Joan Crawford play somebody's mother. Riviera had become a character actor.

Where were the 80s of yesteryear? Where the double bogeys? The out-of-bounds? The lost balls? The four-putts? Oh, a few people had trouble keeping the ball on the course and out of the trees, but, in general, they were treating our fair lady like it was the Tucson municipal course.

The weather, ordinarily a staunch ally, turned traitor. Bright sun, still winds, fogless fairways greeted the touring pros. The ball rolled, the putts were straight, the scores sank.

On Sunday the two leaders eagled the first hole. Oldtimers shrank behind trees, or prayed for rain, or wind — or an earthquake, for crying out loud. These youngsters were going to score in the 260s, the kind of figures you would expect for Brackenridge Park, not Riviera. Watson was fifteen-under after three holes. It was like kicking a man who was down, tying a can to a dog.

Then, a remarkable thing happened. Groggy, on watery legs, groping to its feet on the ropes, Riviera rose and began to show these kids what it was like when it still had a right hand, a fastball, a cannonball serve, a home-run swing. The red numbers began to tumble off the scoreboard. The greens grew slick. The eucalyptus limbs slapped down tee shots. The ears grew flat, and the course began to growl.

The girl who was tied to the tracks was wrecking the train. Johnny Miller, no less, had difficulty breaking 80. Defending champion Pat Fitzsimons couldn't. Suddenly, it was a midnight trip through a cemetery. Dave Hill, who shot 66 Friday, shot 81 Sunday. The crone turned back into a chorus girl, wicked and heart-breaking. The 13th hole became all but unputtable, the 18th all but unreachable. Great players suddenly discovered they had the flu. The diagnosis was unmistakable — an 8 on a par-4.

Instead of two players in the 260s, there were no players in the 260s. Instead of 26 players under par, there were a dozen.

This was Riviera from the white tees, in some instances — in other words, with one hand strapped behind her back on some holes. It didn't matter. Even starting out 2 under par for the round after only one hole, the course forced a five-shot swing in only six holes.

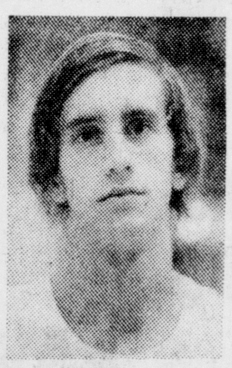
So, the old champ was not ready to hang them up just yet. She had a great last half. She put several U.S. and British Open champions on a bus home at the cut.

I haven't felt so good since Grover Cleveland Alexander came out of the bullpen and struck out the Yankees with the bases loaded.

Coaches name 17 cagers to all-conference squad

Brian Allsmiller

Clyde Glass



Keith Schildt

A glittering, star-studded cast of 17 makes up the Mid-Suburban League All-Conference basketball team chosen by the league's coaches and announced late Monday afternoon by MSL officials.

Among the league's list of premier players are three repeaters from last year's all-conference squad, including Buffalo Grove's talented 6-foot-8 junior Brian Allsmiller, who was a unanimous selection as a sophomore in 1975.

The two remaining all-conference returnees are Hersey's Clyde Glass and Wheeling's Keith Schildt. Both were unanimous choices, as was Allsmiller.

The coaches chose eight players from the North division and nine from the South division because of the extra team in the South. Of the 17 selections, 10 were unanimous picks and four were underclassmen.

The South all-conference selections were Ed Chmiel, John Chmiel, and Jon McIlraith of Schaumburg, Pete Scaffidi and Ron Sulaski of Conant, Bill Wissen of Rolling Meadows, Chris Etter of Prospect, Nate Adams of Forest View and Dave Hornacek of Elk Grove.

The North division team includes Allsmiller, Glass, and Schildt, plus Kevin McKenna of Palatine, Jay McDermott of Hersey, Jim Grandt of Arlington, Rick Kolze of Fremd, and Mike Ledna of Buffalo Grove.

South-division runnerup Schaumburg led all teams with three players in the elite group, including unanimous selections Ed Chmiel and McIlraith. Chmiel's younger brother, John, was the only sophomore honored by the panel of coaches.

Division champions Conant and Buffalo Grove placed two members each on the squad. Hersey, the second-place team in the North, also landed a pair of players on the all-conference team.

Buffalo Grove, North-division and MSL champion, put Ledna, a junior playmaking guard, on the squad along with Allsmiller. Conant sharpshooter Scaffidi and his 6-5 teammate Sulaski were both unanimous selections for the South division Cougars.

Allsmiller's 25-point average and his league-leading rebounding total helped carry the Bison to their first league title after just three years of varsity play. Ledna led the North division in assists while averaging eight points per game.

Perhaps the strangest story is that of McDermott. Hersey's 6-8 redhead was cut from the squad as a freshman, failed to go out as a soph, and spent most of his junior year on the sidelines with a broken leg.

As a senior, McDermott averaged 13 points a game, finished among the top five in rebounding, and was a unanimous pick, as was Hornacek, the Elk Grove star who wound up as the league's fourth-leading scorer.

The all-conferenoe team includes the league's leading scorer, McKenna, who finished the MSL season with a 26.1-per game average. The Pirate junior was a unanimous selection.

The league's next four top scorers were also on the team: Allsmiller, Glass (17.7), Hornacek (17.5) and Schildt (16.0).

Allsmiller, McKenna, and McIlraith all made important strides on the way up the Herald Area alltime scoring ladder. Allsmiller has moved into fourth place during the season and McIlraith and McKenna both edged into the top 10.

Veeck opens Sox camp in defiance of owners

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veeck put his 25 non-roster players through a long workout in the Florida sun Monday, opening spring baseball training in defiance of the rest of the major league owners.

Other clubs have refused to open spring workouts in an effort to pressure players into reaching an agreement with owners on the controversial reserve clause.

About 75 fans gathered to watch, the minor league players go through batting and fielding practice and exercises in the two and a half hour training session.

Veeck, appearing happy and oblivious to the criticism from other owners, told newsmen: "I don't know why, but just the sound of a bat and a ball seems to lift my spirits."

Veeck and White Sox manager Paul Richards said they felt some of the non-roster players who will get a long look by coaches at the training camp may eventually make the club.

"I have a feeling that maybe two or three, and maybe more, might end up" with the club, Veeck said, adding that Chicago's roster was probably the most unsettled among the major league clubs. "That's why spring training is so terribly important to us."

He said unsigned veteran free agents Bob Oliver and Cleon Jones, were among the most enthusiastic of the non-roster ballplayers at the camp.

Veeck told newsmen he was surprised that no other club owners followed his lead and opened spring training before an agreement was reached on the reserve clause.

The White Sox owner said he wished the negotiations and legal arguments over the reserve clause could be handled in private so baseball could continue.

"The weird part" of the current negotiations, he said, is that "there are no winners. There's nothing but losers."

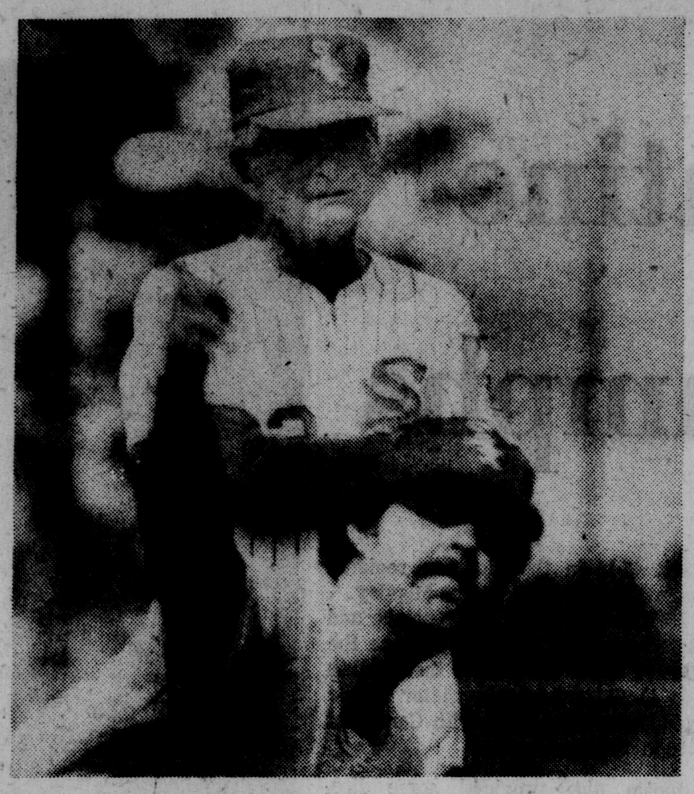
Sports world



CHICAGO WHITE Sox manager Paul Richards watches one of his young non-roster pitchers Bill Moran warm up in Sarasota, Fla. The White Sox became the first club to open organized Spring Training Monday. See related story on page one.

Spring is in the air . . .?

The 1976 Major League baseball season did not open as usual Monday with the advent of spring training but there were some developments in the diamond world. Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veeck welcomed 25 non-rostered players and a pair of unsigned veterans into a makeshift camp at Sarasota, Fla., defying other club owners applying pressure for settlement of the controversial reserve clause. And on that same subject Lee McPhail, president of the American League made public in New York Monday a proposal his group has sent to the Players Association.

In other baseball news: The Chicago Cubs announced the signing of second baseman Manny Trillo, shortstop Dave Rosello and pitcher Willie Prall, bringing their total of players under contract to 16 . . . On the South Side, advance ticket sales at White Sox Park are up 40 per cent over last year with more than $900,000 sold, a spokesman for the club said Monday . . . Meanwhile Bob Lurie flew home from Minneapolis to San Francisco and announced that he and his parter-in-purchase of the Giants — Bob Short — were unable to meet a National League deadline Monday but are going to ask for an extension and expect to get it.

Hoosiers, May keep rolling

Indiana's top-ranked and unbeaten Hoosiers, with Scott May leading the way with 25 points, moved to within one game of a second consecutive perfect Big Ten season Monday night, defeating Northwestern 76-63.

Indiana stretched its regular season string to 56 games and 36 in the conference. May, the conference's fourth-leading scorer, had 17 of his total points in the first half.

Northwestern trailed by a 26-20 count midway through the first half but May hit on a couple of one-handers, center Kent Benson connected on four foul shots and May hit on two more field goals to open a 45-29 lead at intermission.

Tim Teasley and Billy McKinney shared Northwestern scoring honors with 20 points apiece. Indiana is 25-0 over-all and 16-0 in the conference. Northwestern dropped to 7-9 in the Big Ten and 12-13 over-all.

In other Midwest college cage action Monday:

Tim Paterick scored 23 points and Dale Koehler 20 to lead Wisconsin to a 91-79 victory over Ohio State in a battle to escape the Big Ten basement. Both the Badgers, now 9-16 over-all, and the Buckeyes entered the game with 2-14 conference records, tied for last place.

Michigan State's all-time leading scorer Terry Furlow scored 32 points and guard Robert Chapman 27 to push the Spartans to a 93-88 Big Ten basketball victory over Iowa.

Mike Thompson and Ray Williams combined for all but eight of Minnesota's 47 second half points to lead the Gophers to an 81-79 upset of No. 9-ranked Michigan.

Billy Paterno scored nine of Notre Dame's 17 points in overtime Monday night to lead the Fighting Irish to a 95-88 win over Western Michigan. It was only the second loss against 22 wins for Western Michigan, which plays Miami of Ohio Wednesday night with the Mid America Conference championship at stake.

Nicklaus charges to win

Golf superstar Jack Nicklaus pulled away from the field Monday in the final round of the rain-delayed Tournament Players championship and beat challenger J. C. Snead by a commanding three strokes for the $60,000 first prize in Lauderhill, Fla.

Nicklaus, winner of two of the three TPCs that have been played, began the round tied with Snead for the lead but shot a seven-under-par 65 under sunny skies for a 19-under-par 269 that left Snead far behind.

Snead, winner two weeks ago at San Diego, finished with a 68-272 to pick up $34,200 in this tournament, one of three $300,000 events on the PGA tour this year. Nicklaus, playing in the threesome immediately ahead of Snead, applied the clincher at the par-five 15th hole when he placed his second shot 30 feet from the cup and putted in for an eagle.

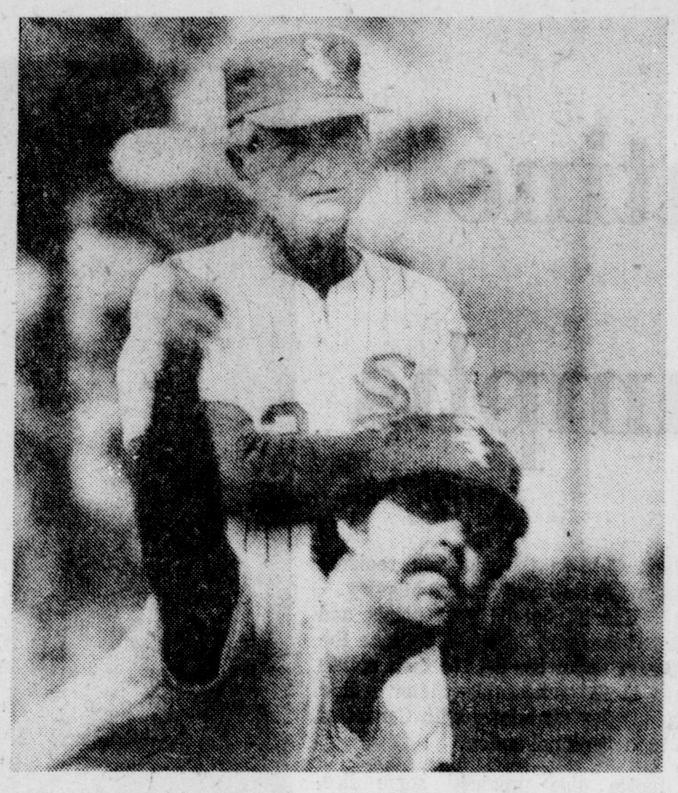
Sports world



CHICAGO WHITE Sox manager Paul Richards watches one of his young non-roster pitchers Bill Moran warm up in Sarasota, Fla. The White Sox became the first club to open organized Spring Training Monday. See related story on page one.

Spring is in the air . . .?

The 1976 Major League baseball season did not open as usual Monday with the advent of spring training but there were some developments in the diamond world. Chicago White Sox owner Bill Veeck welcomed 25 non-rostered players and a pair of unsigned veterans into a makeshift camp at Sarasota, Fla., defying other club owners applying pressure for settlement of the controversial reserve clause. And on that same subject Lee McPhail, president of the American League made public in New York Monday a proposal his group has sent to the Players Association.

In other baseball news: The Chicago Cubs announced the signing of second baseman Manny Trillo, shortstop Dave Rosello and pitcher Willie Prall, bringing their total of players under contract to 16 . . . On the South Side, advance ticket sales at White Sox Park are up 40 per cent over last year with more than $900,000 sold, a spokesman for the club said Monday . . . Meanwhile Bob Lurie flew home from Minneapolis to San Francisco and announced that he and his parter-in-purchase of the Giants — Bob Short — were unable to meet a National League deadline Monday but are going to ask for an extension and expect to get it.

Hoosiers, May keep rolling

Indiana's top-ranked and unbeaten Hoosiers, with Scott May leading the way with 25 points, moved to within one game of a second consecutive perfect Big Ten season Monday night, defeating Northwestern 76-63.

Indiana stretched its regular season string to 56 games and 36 in the conference. May, the conference's fourth-leading scorer, had 17 of his total points in the first half.

Northwestern trailed by a 26-20 count midway through the first half but May hit on a couple of one-handers, center Kent Benson connected on four foul shots and May hit on two more field goals to open a 45-29 lead at intermission.

Tim Teasley and Billy McKinney shared Northwestern scoring honors with 20 points apiece. Indiana is 25-0 over-all and 16-0 in the conference. Northwestern dropped to 7-9 in the Big Ten and 12-13 over-all.

In other Midwest college cage action Monday:

Tim Paterick scored 23 points and Dale Koehler 20 to lead Wisconsin to a 91-79 victory over Ohio State in a battle to escape the Big Ten basement. Both the Badgers, now 9-16 over-all, and the Buckeyes entered the game with 2-14 conference records, tied for last place.

Michigan State's all-time leading scorer Terry Furlow scored 32 points and guard Robert Chapman 27 to push the Spartans to a 93-88 Big Ten basketball victory over Iowa.

Mike Thompson and Ray Williams combined for all but eight of Minnesota's 47 second half points to lead the Gophers to an 81-79 upset of No. 9-ranked Michigan.

Billy Paterno scored nine of Notre Dame's 17 points in overtime Monday night to lead the Fighting Irish to a 95-88 win over Western Michigan. It was only the second loss against 22 wins for Western Michigan, which plays Miami of Ohio Wednesday night with the Mid America Conference championship at stake.

Nicklaus charges to win

Golf superstar Jack Nicklaus pulled away from the field Monday in the final round of the rain-delayed Tournament Players championship and beat challenger J. C. Snead by a commanding three strokes for the $60,000 first prize in Lauderhill, Fla.

Nicklaus, winner of two of the three TPCs that have been played, began the round tied with Snead for the lead but shot a seven-under-par 65 under sunny skies for a 19-under-par 269 that left Snead far behind.

Snead, winner two weeks ago at San Diego, finished with a 68-272 to pick up $34,200 in this tournament, one of three $300,000 events on the PGA tour this year. Nicklaus, playing in the threesome immediately ahead of Snead, applied the clincher at the par-five 15th hole when he placed his second shot 30 feet from the cup and putted in for an eagle.

Typewriter keys placed for ease

Andy sends an award to Maria Destradi, 11, of Brackendale, B.C., Canada, for her question:

WHY AREN'T TYPEWRITER KEYS IN ALPHABETICAL ORDER?

Our modern-day typewriter is a far cry from the early machines. It is faster, easier to use and produces a much neater finished product. While the basic idea of the typewriter has remained unchanged, the improvements have made it an indispensable tool in the business world. And one of the first and most important improvements involved changing the placement of the letter keys.

The modern typewriter has 42 or more keys. Pressing down on one of these keys causes a corresponding type bar to strike a piece of paper through an inked ribbon. For example, if you push down on the "A" key, a type bar with an "A" on it will hit the inked ribbon and you will have a nice neat "A" on a piece of paper. This trick is performed through a complicated series of levers and linkages.

The first typewriters worked in much the same way. Of course, they had a few drawbacks. One was that with the early machines you couldn't see what you had typed until you were finished. Needless to say, this caused a few problems. Another disadvantage was in the placement of the keys. The first models placed the keys in alphabetical order. This was considered a logical arrangement but, sad to say, the typists didn't like it at all.

The first practical typewriter was built in 1867. It was designed by Christopher Sholes, Carlos Glidden and Samuel Soule. It was manufactured by Remington and Sons, the same company that made firearms and sewing machines. The machine itself was not the first typewriter, but it was the first one that was easy to use.

Perhaps the greatest thing this typewriter had going for it was the arrangement of the keys. As you remember, the earlier machines had the keys in alphabetical order. This, however, caused frequent jamming of the keys. Sholes rearranged the keys so that the most frequently used combinations of letters were as far apart as possible. This made it possible to type faster and also reduce the probability of jamming the keys together.

In the years following the production of the Sholes, Glidden and Soule machine, many improvements have been introduced. In 1878 the shift key was added. By 1880 it was possible to see what you were typing while you were typing it. Electric machines and changeable type heads are among the latest improvements.

The rhythmic click-click of the typewriter can be heard everywhere — schools, homes, offices and libraries. Millions of students take typing classes every year to learn to use this invaluable machine. For not only is writing more efficiently handled, the reading of the finished product is also much more easily accomplished.

Andy sends an award to Gloria Walters, 12, of Hughesville, Pa., for her question:

WHEN DID LICENSE PLATES START AND WHY DO WE USE THEM?

Along with trucks, trailers, motorcycles and many other vehicles, there are more than 93 million automobiles cruising the highways and byways of the United States. Most cars have two license plates, one on the front, the other on the back. Since no two autos have the same license number, these metal plates serve to identify the vehicle, which is essential for the owner, insurance companies and law enforcement officials. What's more, license and registration fees help pay for highways and roads.

Back in 1901, the state of New York issued the nation's first license plates. There were a scant 10,000 cars on the road then, and it was several years before a uniform policy regarding plates evolved. Some tags were merely decals pasted into the rear window. Another variety was silver dollar-size aluminum discs placed on the dashboard. Until 1955 license plates could vary in size, depending on the number of letters or numbers. Now, however, each state must issue plates that are 6 by 12 inches, regardless of special letters or numbers.

Chicago Ballet—technique good, but not much spirit

Mid-week review

by LYNN ASINOF

The Chicago Ballet this weekend showed what happens when the flesh is willing but the spirit is weak. The performance was interesting, but left no one sitting on the edge of his seat.

Make no mistake — the dancing was strong and the technique was sure. But the company is operating under the direction of new management, and it is apparent that the dancers miss former artistic director Ben Stevenson.

Most of the dancers are part of a lame duck company. They will be following Stevenson to Houston at the end of the season. It is understandable that the remaining six weeks in Chicago weigh heavily on them.

THE WEEKEND'S performance provided a showcase for several of the soon-to-be-departing dancers, showing that the city indeed will be less for the loss.

For Deidre Grohgan, long-legged and lovely, there was the second act of the classical fantasy ballet "Coppelia." In the part of Swanilda, she was playful, high-spirited and typically refreshing.

The piece is full of pantomime, as Swanilda dupes the crotchety old Dr. Coppelius into thinking she is his life-sized doll Coppelia come to life. In between the pantomime, done so well with Richard Ellis as Dr. Coppelius, Miss Grohgan handles demanding solo sections with an impressive assurance and brightness.

Dorio Perez had his chance to shine in Balanchine's dramatic portrayal of the Biblical tale "The Prodigal Son." He was thoroughly convincing as the starry-eyed son who turns from his father's house to taste the pleasures of the outside world.

THE WORLD HE discovers, however, is far from pleasing. Grotesque gargoyle-like revelers, and two devil-may-care friends danced with great energy by 11 of the company's men, lead Perez quickly from partying to debauchery. He is robbed, stripped of his clothes and deserted.

Michelle Lees, returning as a guest with her former company, was hard and flinty as the siren, providing a caricature of sexuality. She has a fine acrobatic sense required by Balanchine's grotesque poses, but her movements are uncomfortably leaden.

There are tremendous strength and vitality to most of the piece, in large part because of Perez. He puts life into the powerful emotions that fill the ballet. He longs, desires, lusts, despairs and repents.

The repenting, however, was a bit much, and as the piece drew to a close it was a relief to see Perez finally get off his knees.

THE OPENING ballet of the evening showed that the company ably handles Balanchine's fast and complex choreography. "Concerto Barocco" is a ballet for the women of the company, who, dressed in white, intertwine in musical patterns of point and counterpoint.

A repeat from earlier in the season, "Concerto Barocco," featured Suzanne Longley and Miss Grohgan. Both danced with a brittle, hard edge that was sorely lacking in their partner Michael Bjerknes.

While the story of the Chicago Ballet is still in the telling, the current season is a chapter that should not be missed. The troupe performs again March 18-21 at the tiny chamber theater, 1016 N. Dearborn St., with the final program scheduled in April.

Rubber bridge much safer

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

A good match-point player would go down at three notrump in an effort to score overtricks. He would know that suits break 3-2 68 per cent of the time and that the odds were that West had led away from a diamond honor.

So he would play a low diamond from dummy. East would take his queen and lead back a club. South would rise with the ace and go after hearts. West would show out on the second heart lead whereupon South would cash three hearts and two spades, finesse against West's king of diamonds, get out for down one and a fair match-point score since lots of other players would be going down.

A rubber-bridge player would study the dummy for a while. If an optimist he might also duck that first diamond, but if he were a realist he would say that a game in the hand is a nice thing to have. Then he would rise with dummy's ace of diamonds, lead a low heart and wind up with two spades, five hearts, two minor-suit aces and game and rubber.

There are tremendous strength and vitality to most of the piece, in large part because of Perez. He puts life into the powerful emotions that fill the ballet. He longs, desires, lusts, despairs and repents.

The repenting, however, was a bit much, and as the piece drew to a close it was a relief to see Perez finally get off his knees.

THE OPENING ballet of the evening showed that the company ably handles Balanchine's fast and complex choreography. "Concerto Barocco" is a ballet for the women of the company, who, dressed in white, intertwine in musical patterns of point and counterpoint.

A repeat from earlier in the season, "Concerto Barocco," featured Suzanne Longley and Miss Grohgan. Both danced with a brittle, hard edge that was sorely lacking in their partner Michael Bjerknes.

While the story of the Chicago Ballet is still in the telling, the current season is a chapter that should not be missed. The troupe performs again March 18-21 at the tiny chamber theater, 1016 N. Dearborn St., with the final program scheduled in April.

Rubber bridge much safer

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

A good match-point player would go down at three notrump in an effort to score overtricks. He would know that suits break 3-2 68 per cent of the time and that the odds were that West had led away from a diamond honor.

So he would play a low diamond from dummy. East would take his queen and lead back a club. South would rise with the ace and go after hearts. West would show out on the second heart lead whereupon South would cash three hearts and two spades, finesse against West's king of diamonds, get out for down one and a fair match-point score since lots of other players would be going down.

A rubber-bridge player would study the dummy for a while. If an optimist he might also duck that first diamond, but if he were a realist he would say that a game in the hand is a nice thing to have. Then he would rise with dummy's ace of diamonds, lead a low heart and wind up with two spades, five hearts, two minor-suit aces and game and rubber.

Boat show opens Friday

The Seventh Annual Midwest Boat and Resort Show will open Friday, March 5 and run through Sunday, March 14 in the Arlington Park Race Track Convention Center, Northwest Hwy. and Wilke Rd.

The show will be open to the public from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. on opening day, from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays, and from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays.

Tickets are $3 for each person over 12 years of age and $1 for those under 12, and are available at any of the dealers displaying a Midwest Boat Show sign and at the door.

Magician to entertain

One of the top young magicians will be featured at the seventh Annual Midwest Boat and Resort Show.

Danton is an 18-year-old high school senior who will appear nightly.

His bag of tricks includes many of the "Hand is quicker than the eye" variety. However, it is as an illusionist that he will literally force his audience to the edge of their chairs trying to find out how he makes Nancy Reynolds disappear, then re-appear, or how he floats her in mid-air.

Tow rope provides lifeline

Water skiing has proved itself to be an activity suitable to a variety of skills. Whether simply planing along at 25 mph or whipping through a slalom on 30 feet of rope at 45 mph, the skier's ability does depend considerably on competent boat handling. A good towboat driver certainly enhances the performance and adds much to the enjoyment of the activity.

In addition to driving skills, the towboat operator must also possess a keen sense of responsibility for the human pendulum dangling astern. Common sense precautions adhered to by the driver assure that the day's outing will end as pleasantly as it began. Boating experts have compiled "ten commandments" for ski boat driving safety.

One — Never pull a skier without having an alert observer astern to watch the skier and relay hand signals. You've got your job straight ahead of you; the third party is a must for safety.

Two — Before starting out, check all equipment thoroughly. Be sure that the rope mount is strong enough to pull the load. Similarly the tow rope should be in good condition; the skier shoud have the proper personal flotation device and the towboat should be functioning properly.

Three — Select a place with room to maneuver. Avoid congested areas where your activity will conflict with other boating and fishing parties.

Four — While underway or cutting back to shore for a dropoff, be alert for shoreline hazards such as piers, floats and stumps. Also know where the sandbars and shallow spots are.

Five — While out in the deeper parts of the waterway, remain alert to floating hazards such as logs, even unexpected swimmers and rafters.

Six — A smooth takeoff is mandatory for a neat snapup by your towline passenger. Smooth throttle control is a sound practice while underway. Avoid sudden slack and tension in the line. This can be an unpleasant surprise to the unwary.

Seven —Be familiar with the skier's ability. Don't overtax him or her by driving too fast or cutting rapidly or sharply.

Eight — Do establish a communications system. The standard water skier's hand signals are definitely recommended. The skier should determine and indicate the direction, action and speed of the towboat.

Nine — When sweeping back to pick up the fallen skier, don't overrun the tow rope. Approach the skier at slow speed to bring the rope within reach.

Ten — When the exercise is over, it is a good policy to shut off the engine while the skier is boarding the boat. A slowly rotating propeller can be just as hazardous as a guillotine.

To sum it appropriately, the tow rope is your skiing passenger's lifeline . . . don't foul it up.

Planning 1st canoe-camping trip

If you enjoy outdoor activities such as hiking, bicycling, camping and canoeing, you'd probably enjoy the mix of canoe-camping. Here are some important considerations for first trips.

The itinerary should start within a convenient drive from your home town. This would allow friends to pick up members of the group in case of bad weather or a health emergency.

There should be logical stopping places along the route where the food committee can replenish supplies, refill water jugs, stop for refreshments or call for medical help. These spots should be surveyed in advance by group leaders.

The waterway should be protected and small enought to prevent the wind from building up any kind of rough water. For a first trip, rapids, riffles and fast currents should be avoided.

Camping sites should be conveniently located at intervals so that a day's run can be shortened or even lengthened if necessary. Campsites should be close to the waterside to discourage casual visitors, and banks should be low enough to permit hauling the canoes completely out of the water at night.

In planning trip time, add ½ day for each two days of travel to account for bad weather or slower paddle rates.

As your group gains experience and expertise, you'll then want to venture farther, but remember to keep the challenges within reasonable goals.

Right approach when docking

Always approach a pier by running your boat against the wind or current, whichever of the two is the stronger.

If there is no alternative and you must dock by running with the wind or current, however, make your approach slowly, then cut back your throttle and drift in to a berthing position. Do not cut your engine until you are securely against the pier.

Following these directions should lead to a simpler, more effective docking.

AN ALL-NEW 35-horsepower outboard — comparable in size and weight to last year's 25-hp model and smaller and lighter than most competitive outboards in its power class — has been unveiled for 1976 by Johnson Outboards. The new Sea-Horse 35, available in both electric - and automatic rewind manual-starting models, combines such big-motor features as thru tilt pin steering capability and streamlined lower unit with such small-motor efficiencies as FireFlash low tension ignition and shallow-water drive. The twin-cylinder 35 gets its power from a 31.8-cubic-inch, aluminum die cast powerhead, with a 3-by-2¼ inch bore and stroke. It uses regular or unleaded gasoline, and, like all 1976 Johnsons is drainless.

AN ALL-NEW 35-horsepower outboard — comparable in size and weight to last year's 25-hp model and smaller and lighter than most competitive outboards in its power class — has been unveiled for 1976 by Johnson Outboards. The new Sea-Horse 35, available in both electric - and automatic rewind manual-starting models, combines such big-motor features as thru tilt pin steering capability and streamlined lower unit with such small-motor efficiencies as FireFlash low tension ignition and shallow-water drive. The twin-cylinder 35 gets its power from a 31.8-cubic-inch, aluminum die cast powerhead, with a 3-by-2¼ inch bore and stroke. It uses regular or unleaded gasoline, and, like all 1976 Johnsons is drainless.

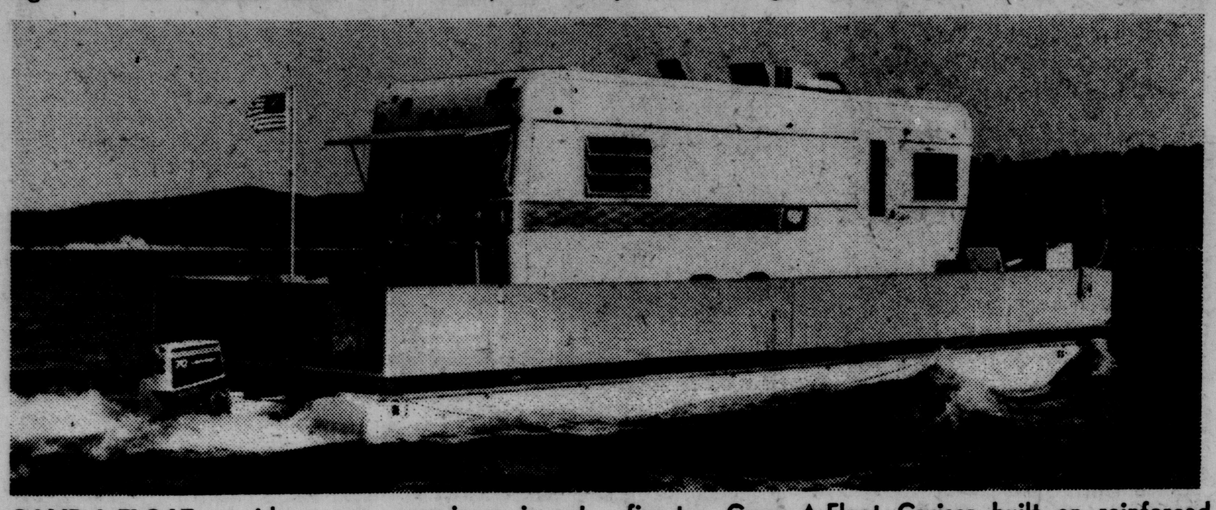
Take travel trailor on floating vacation

Larry Peterson of Elk Grove Village listed his vacation needs and started looking for one answer.

First, the family wanted to get away — really away — from the crowds. Avid campers, they also wanted to take their travel trailer along. And probably the most important point; it should be an economical way to go.



CAMP-A-FLOAT provides a new experience in outdoor recreation for owners of motor homes, pick-up campers, vans, "pop-ups" and travel trailers by adapting these vehicles for use as houseboats. The five-ton Camp-A-Float Cruiser built on reinforced twin steel pontoons implements this transformation and can accommodate RVs up to 30 feet in length and with a total weight of 9,000 pounds.

Peterson added it all up and turned to Camp-A-Float for the answer. Bringing a new perspective to outdoor recreation, Camp-A-Float features a five-ton pontoon craft with a flat, open deck. RVs are simply backed onto the craft, positioned, secured to the steel substructure and, presto! Instant houseboat.

According to Peterson, a Camp-A-Float cruise can't be beat for privacy and sheer fun.

"ANYONE WHO WANTS to be alone for a vacation ought to try wandering around Lake Ouachita (Arkansas) on a Cruiser," he said. "We never had any noisy neighbors because we just didn't have any neighbors."

As many camping enthusiasts already know, getting away from the crowds is nearly impossible these days. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reports that the number of camping enthusiasts in the United States has tripled since 1960. And the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation adds that it expects the number to quadruple by the year 2000.

Today some 50 million campers with more five million recreational vehicles vie for campground space all year round.

"It's great to have the freedom to go and do as you want while out on the lake," Peterson added. "We had a super time."

Part of the fun was allowing his two teen-age daughters to handle the craft, which is powered by an outboard marine engine and guided from a captain's bridge. The Cruiser maintains an on-board 55-gallon gasoline tank, as well.

COMBINED WITH an additional 100 gallon water tank, and another 100 gallon sewage tank, the Cruiser literally becomes a floating, self-sustained campground, virtually eliminating frequent dockings for supplies or fuel.

For safety, the Cruiser's large 38x12 foot deck is designed to support an RV up to 31 feet long weighing up to 9,000 pounds. For the less elaborate, tents can also be used on the cruisers.

Approved for use by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Department of Health, the Cruiser also sports nearly 100 feet of safety rails and gates 28 inches high that enclose the deck area. Swimming ladders and a gangplank are also attached.

"It was not too hard on the pocketbook, either," Peterson opined. "Considering what you can spend at other places, we got our money's worth and felt the Camp-A-Float cruise was a bargain."

A COMBINATION of overcrowding and the need for an economical camping vacation, particularly where fuel prices are concerned, sparked the birth of Camp-A-Float about two years ago. Currently, campers can rent a Cruiser for $225 per week between Memorial Day and Labor Day; $190 per week from Labor Day to November 1, and from March 1 to Memorial Day; and $150 per week all other times.

For those who need one, a fully equipped RV can be rented for a supplementary $150 per week.

Camp-A-Float also maintains a wilderness lake site on Lake Hartwell straddling the Georgia/South Carolina border, and plans to open still another site out west sometime this coming summer.

The Lake Ouachita site is located within the Ouachita National Forest 16 miles west of Hot Springs, Ark. Its shoreline length is 690 miles with 200 islands.

Lake Hartwell is located in the upper Piedmont Plateau and the lower foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains. It has 962 miles of shoreline with over 100 islands.

Swimming, fishing, hiking, scuba diving, exploring, and hunting in season can all be enjoyed on these lakes.

For more information, contact Camp-A-Float, P.O. Box 1625, Rockford, Ill. 61110, phone 815-968-6633.

Prevent trouble before it starts

If someone tries to sell you a "maintenance free" boat, the Outboard Boating Club of America advises trying to get him jailed, or at least run out of town on a rail.

Like the Time Machine, the maintenance free boat hasn't been invented yet. But OBC points out that maintenance on today's boats isn't the drudgery it was 20 years ago. These few in-seaason maintenance steps will make your next spring fitting-out a breeze:

Hose down the boat hull with fresh water every time you pull it out. Wipe down the hardware, too. You'll be preventing a build-up of grime and, in the case of the hardware, forestalling corrosion.

Inspect the engine carefully and check the propeller for possible damage. Check the prop shaft to make sure you don't have a hunk of monofilament fishing line wrapped around it. If you don't plan to run your outboard motor for a month or so, disconnect the fuel line and run the engine until all the gas is burned out of the carburetor; this prevents gum from forming.

When you get the boat home and unhitch the trailer, use a jack stand, or whatever, to raise the bow slightly, so that rainwater will drain out through the transom.

Avoid covering the boat if at all possible. Covering the boat encourages a build-up of moisture and humidity, which, in turn, spawns mildew on lifejackets and just about everything else you have stowed. If you must cover the boat, make sure you never cover the outboard motor — that moisture build-up will do nasty things to the ignition system.

Top off your fuel tanks after an outing to prevent condensation of moisture in the tank.

Remove your propeller and grease the shaft frequently. Frozen props are next to impossible to remove. And, while you've got the grease out, slap some on other moving parts of your boat, like control linkages, steering and tilt brackets.

An occasional coat of paste wax — the automotive variety is fine, but there are some just for boats, too — will help keep your fiberglass hull from chalking. It won't do a bit of harm to a painted aluminum hull, either.

Keep a spray can of demoisturant on board. A "whoosh" here and there will help keep deck hardware and other metal parts free of corrosion.

There are several more mid-season maintenance steps you could take, but, OBC feels, if you just follow these, you'll save backaches and headaches come the spring thaw.

TOTALLY NEW for 1976 is the MirroCraft Mariner series of four aluminum 19 and 21-foot outboard and stern drive boats. One of the four, the Mariner Sport Fisherman, (above) is designed with a center console that provides anglers with real room to move about. Rated for up to 150 outboard horsepower, the Mariner Sport Fisherman has a 92 inch beam, 85 inch transom width, 43 inch bow height, interior depth of 27 inch and overall height of 70 inch from keel to the top of the windshield. In addition to a back-to-back console seat, the Marine Sport Fisherman has a 92 inch bow storage locker, navigational lights, stainless steel bow rail, 25-gallon aluminum fuel tank with electric gauge, level foam flotation, pre-installed top slide rail, electric bilge pump, heavy duty marine hardware, mechanical steering, stainless steel bow and towing eyes, marine grade textured vinyl flooring, console and seat storage and grab rail. Custom options include a complete top set and insulated cooler/seat combination.

Boat camping adds new dimensions

Whether heading out to sea or exploring inland waterways, boat camping adds new dimensions to wilderness treks.

Motor-powered boats provide the fastest transportation afloat. If you're planning to camp along the shore, it's best to begin looking for a location in mid-afternoon. That allows ample time to set up camp and moor the boat securely.

In salt water, anchor the boat off shore at twice the distance of the tide drop. Then run the boat away from the anchor to be sure it's firmly hooked in place. And be sure to allow enough line to hit bottom and compensate for high and low tide.

Canoes are the best choice in areas where motors aren't allowed or where the water is too shallow for larger boats. Keeping the gear light is important. Ideally, the canoe and gear should be carried in one or two portages.

Flat bottom canoes provide stability and carrying capacity for campers. Experts recommend stowing coolers and other gear in the bottom and center of the craft. And, of course, the gear should be packed while the canoe is in the water.

To protect gear from rain or splashes, a waterproof blanket or tarpaulin can be placed across the cargo and tied down with rope. This is especially important if swift rapids or white water is expected along the route.

The blanket or tarp can also double as a rainproof shelter, although you may prefer a lightweight tent.

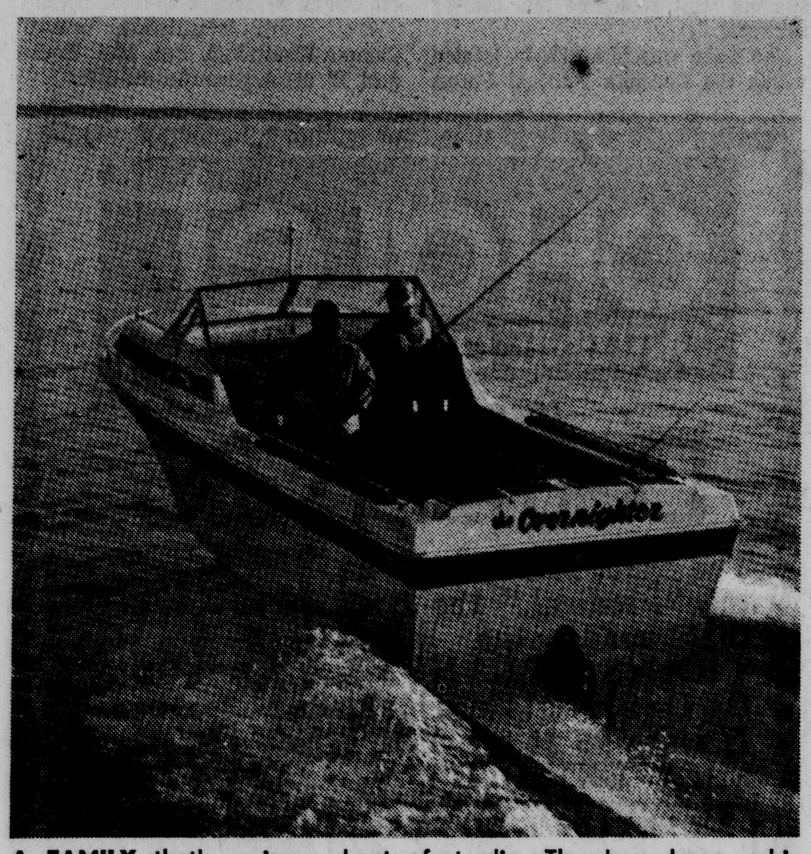
You'll probably want to take along a fishing rod for a fresh dinner along the way. But to be sure you have a good meal anytime, take along dehydrated foods. They do not require refrigeration and rehydrate in a few minutes to provide tasty steaks, chops, vegetables or fruits.

Maps of inland waterways are generally easy to follow, but a compass will help you spot landmarks on the map. And to prevent getting waterlogged, take along a sponge for mopping up any bilge that might accumulate. Scooping water from the nearly flat bottom of a canoe is almost impossible.

If this is your first trip, you might consider renting a canoe from an outfitter along the trail. Aluminum crafts are preferred by many because of their lighter weight and durability.

Canvas canoes are sturdier than their name implies, and they are silent while paddling. But for portages, they do absorb moisture which can increase their weight upward of 20 pounds. Fiberglass craft tend to be heavier than either wooden or aluminum models.

But whatever your choice in boats, enjoy your waterlegs. Boat camping will take you back to the wilds for an outing you'll want to repeat.



A FAMILY that's serious about fishing will love this huge open cockpit. The modified-V hull and power options up to twin 140 HP engines will get you home at a fast clip. There's a large cabin and plenty of storage space. Available at the Boat Supermarket, 3298 Kirchoff Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Swells test driving skills

Almost anyone can learn to drive a pleasureboat competently when wind and water conditions are calm. What distinguishes a real "skipper" from a boat driver is the ability to handle a craft when the going gets rough.

One situation that most boaters encounter at one time or another is having to run a course where a series of long swells approach the boat from the beam. Your boat goes on a roller coaster ride to the crests of the waves, then makes a sickening descent into the troughs.

You may not be taking any water aboard, but the possibility of seasick passengers becomes very real. What should you do?

Boating authorities suggest that you forget about a straight-ahead course and instead begin to zig-zag toward your destination. In other words, start "tacking" like a sailboat does when it's headed into the wind — first to starboard, then to port.

This will delay your trip somewhat, but the ride will be more comfortable. Of even greater importance is the fact that you'll reduce significantly the risk of being capsized by a big roller.

Avoid taking waves on your beam whenever possible.

NEW FOR 1976, from Mercury Marine, the 175-hp Merc 1750 is a direct descendant of the Mercury Twister T-3 high-performance outboard. The loop-charged powerhead offers excellent fuel economy due to the emphasis placed on proper carburetion and fuel transfer. Intake silencing on the carburetor reduces sound levels while thermostatic control in the cooling system regulates operating temperature for peak performance at all speeds. Power Trim is standard equipment on the Merc 1750. Remote-controlled trimming of the hull planing attitude results in a much improved ride and better acceleration with a heavy load. The trim control switch for changing the vertical angle of the outboard is conveniently placed in the handle of the throttle/shift control. This enables the operator to keep one hand on the control lever for increasing or decreasing engine speed while trimming the boat. Included with the motor package is a Power Trim gauge and a heavy-duty tachometer for indicating engine rpm.

Boat camping adds new dimensions

Whether heading out to sea or exploring inland waterways, boat camping adds new dimensions to wilderness treks.

Motor-powered boats provide the fastest transportation afloat. If you're planning to camp along the shore, it's best to begin looking for a location in mid-afternoon. That allows ample time to set up camp and moor the boat securely.

In salt water, anchor the boat off shore at twice the distance of the tide drop. Then run the boat away from the anchor to be sure it's firmly hooked in place. And be sure to allow enough line to hit bottom and compensate for high and low tide.

Canoes are the best choice in areas where motors aren't allowed or where the water is too shallow for larger boats. Keeping the gear light is important. Ideally, the canoe and gear should be carried in one or two portages.

Flat bottom canoes provide stability and carrying capacity for campers. Experts recommend stowing coolers and other gear in the bottom and center of the craft. And, of course, the gear should be packed while the canoe is in the water.

To protect gear from rain or splashes, a waterproof blanket or tarpaulin can be placed across the cargo and tied down with rope. This is especially important if swift rapids or white water is expected along the route.

The blanket or tarp can also double as a rainproof shelter, although you may prefer a lightweight tent.

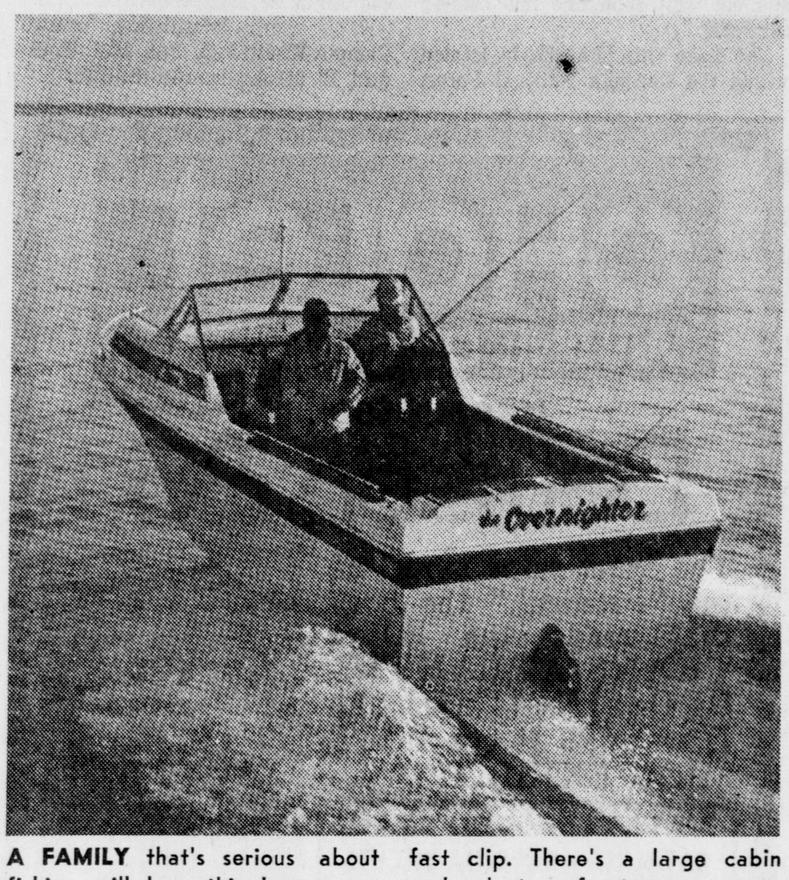
You'll probably want to take along a fishing rod for a fresh dinner along the way. But to be sure you have a good meal anytime, take along dehydrated foods. They do not require refrigeration and rehydrate in a few minutes to provide tasty steaks, chops, vegetables or fruits.

Maps of inland waterways are generally easy to follow, but a compass will help you spot landmarks on the map. And to prevent getting waterlogged, take along a sponge for mopping up any bilge that might accumulate. Scooping water from the nearly flat bottom of a canoe is almost impossible.

If this is your first trip, you might consider renting a canoe from an outfitter along the trail. Aluminum crafts are preferred by many because of their lighter weight and durability.

Canvas canoes are sturdier than their name implies, and they are silent while paddling. But for portages, they do absorb moisture which can increase their weight upward of 20 pounds. Fiberglass craft tend to be heavier than either wooden or aluminum models.

But whatever your choice in boats, enjoy your waterlegs. Boat camping will take you back to the wilds for an outing you'll want to repeat.



A FAMILY that's serious about fishing will love this huge open cockpit. The modified-V hull and power options up to twin 140 HP engines will get you home at a fast clip. There's a large cabin and plenty of storage space. Available at the Boat Supermarket, 3298 Kirchoff Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Swells test driving skills

Almost anyone can learn to drive a pleasureboat competently when wind and water conditions are calm. What distinguishes a real "skipper" from a boat driver is the ability to handle a craft when the going gets rough.

One situation that most boaters encounter at one time or another is having to run a course where a series of long swells approach the boat from the beam. Your boat goes on a roller coaster ride to the crests of the waves, then makes a sickening descent into the troughs.

You may not be taking any water aboard, but the possibility of seasick passengers becomes very real. What should you do?

Boating authorities suggest that you forget about a straight-ahead course and instead begin to zig-zag toward your destination. In other words, start "tacking" like a sailboat does when it's headed into the wind — first to starboard, then to port.

This will delay your trip somewhat, but the ride will be more comfortable. Of even greater importance is the fact that you'll reduce significantly the risk of being capsized by a big roller.

Avoid taking waves on your beam whenever possible.

NEW FOR 1976, from Mercury Marine, the 175-hp Merc 1750 is a direct descendant of the Mercury Twister T-3 high-performance outboard. The loop-charged powerhead offers excellent fuel economy due to the emphasis placed on proper carburetion and fuel transfer. Intake silencing on the carburetor reduces sound levels while thermostatic control in the cooling system regulates operating temperature for peak performance at all speeds. Power Trim is standard equipment on the Merc 1750. Remote-controlled trimming of the hull planing attitude results in a much improved ride and better acceleration with a heavy load. The trim control switch for changing the vertical angle of the outboard is conveniently placed in the handle of the throttle/shift control. This enables the operator to keep one hand on the control lever for increasing or decreasing engine speed while trimming the boat. Included with the motor package is a Power Trim gauge and a heavy-duty tachometer for indicating engine rpm.

Practice boating safety

The prospectors often referred to water as white gold — and the rush is still on today. According to the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, swimming, fishing and boating are among the most popular summertime outdoor activities.

State and federal laws require boat owners to carry life preservers for every passenger on board. But before weighing anchor or taking a dip, everyone should make a quick check of water worthy safety equipment.

The nearest flotable object is the best in an emergency. The ice chest and picnic jug that usually accompany you on aquatic outings can double as life savers. Experts remind us that all urethane insulated coolers will float. They can quickly be pushed or thrown out to a person as an immediate safety measure. A large stick or oar will serve the same purpose.

If the person is near you, hold out a pole, a shirt, a towel or anything he can grab onto. If you know the water is not deep, the current is not fast and the bottom is safe, wade out to the person. But don't swim out to rescue a drowning person unless you've had a course in lifesaving. Too often the rescuer also drowns.

If there's time, row a boat out to the person. A tired swimmer should hold onto the boat — rather than climbing in — as you row to shore. And if the boat tips over, hang on. It will float.

Floating until help arrives is also a good tactic for a swimmer who develops a cramp. Often stretching or changing the swimming stroke will relieve the condition.

Most of all, always follow the rules of water safety. Swim with someone near you, watch children all the time, and at night swim only in well lighted pools.

Dawson 216 on display

Chalet Marine Division in Wilmette will have the Dawson 26 on display at the Boat Show, the sister ship to one which crossed the Atlantic last summer.

The "Prodigal" made a solo trans-Atlantic crossing under the guiding hand of Robert Lengyel. He left Virginia in July and arrived at Plymouth, England 42 days later. During the 4,400 mile crossing, Lengyle survived a hurricane and two force 9 gales.

Chalet Marine Division is located at Lake St. and Skokie Blvd. in Wilmette.

Launching, retrieving tips

Boat launching — quick and easy! Waiting lines at boat launching areas would be eliminated or reduced if every boater made a habit of launching and retrieving his craft quickly.

Launching:

Prior to backing into water make sure plug is in boat and restraining lines are free. Load all gear on boat.

Station an assistant in the boat or on a pier to back boat off the trailer.

Quickly remove car and trailer from the area and make room for the next boat.

Retrieving:

Position trailer with rear rollers submerged.

Have a friend drive boat onto trailer. You can guide him up with hand signals. Lock bow ring to trailer.

Pull the boat up away from the launch area and secure boat to trailer.

Sailboats have right of way

As more people discover the many attractions of the sport of boating, more boats populate the waterways. This means that as powerboat operators come and go in their craft, they encounter sailboats more often.

Enjoyment of the water by everyone is enhanced when the operators of powerboats have a good insight into the peculiarities of sailboats and their mode of operation.

Number one fact for powerboaters to keep in mind is that the rules of the road give the right of way to sailboats practically all the time. The sole exception is that when circumstances dictate otherwise, sailboat skippers must use good sense and give larger powerboats the right of way. The skipper of a small sailboat, for example, does not insist on the right of way over an ocean liner, or over a tug pulling barges in a narrow channel.

Various types of sailboats ride the waves differently. Lighter, swifter ones float high on the water's surface, rise and fall with each wave and are bothered more by powerboat wakes. The rocking shakes wind out of their sails. Bigger ones have deeper draft and while they will rise and fall with waves, they are tossed about and bothered less.

The popular sailing surfboards are decked over and buoyant, and will not sink when capsized. Most can quickly be righted after an upset and a spill is often considered part of the fun. Powerboat operators have to use good judgment when passing such sailboats.

Typically, the several people on board a larger sailboat are out on the water to get away from the hectic pace of life on shore. When powerboats zoom too close, they are apt to feel that their right to privacy is being invaded. So when possible, pass a few hundred feet away from such craft.

Think ahead when approaching any sailboat and judge what your wake is likely to do to it. A little common sense like this goes far toward making the waters a happy place for everyone.

Watch weight

Good athletes are careful about what they eat because they know that it takes more energy to carry around extra pounds.

Boats have the same weight problem, especially as the summer wears on and more and more gear gets stuffed into every little nook and cranny. The heavier the boat, the more energy — gasoline — required to propel it.

That's why it's a good idea to inspect your rig from time to time and ask yourself if you really need to take along certain items. If you're going water skiing for example, leave all that fishing gear in the garage.

Weight distribution is also important in cutting down fuel consumption. Balance your passengers and equipment so you get the best possible boat trim. This enables your boat to get on plane quickly. Having the correct propeller for your boat contributes to the same end. Remember that your fuel consumption is best when you're riding on top of the water, as a planing hull is designed to do, rather than plowing through the water.

Another fuel tip is to shut off your engine whenever you stop. Letting your engine idle consumes fuel and accomplishes nothing: a warm engine can be restarted easily without choking.
